Red Carpet Snafu Draws a Royal Grin, Royal Flushes

Protester greets Queen in Saskatoon

Moose Jaw breeze billows royal dress

Times News Services

Queen Elizabeth has walked on a lot of red carpets, but it seems a safe bet she doesn't often get a chance to watch workmen put one in place.

It happened in Saskatchewan during the weekend and it may even have been a royal first, guaranteeing a dubious mention in the Buckingham archives for the City of Yorkton.

Mayor John Mytrykush was preparing to escort Her Majesty to a jumbo-sized cake she was to cut as part of festivities marking his community's attainment of full-fledged city status 50 years ago.

It should have been a proud moment, but the mayor looked dismayed. He appeared to be prolonging his welcoming remarks.

Where was the red carpet?

Oblivious to their royal audience, the men unfurled their bulky load and the faces of the municipal dignataries developed a crimson hue. Then local VIP's turned a royal red.

The Queen couldn't suppress a grin. Prince Philip laughed, as did many in the audience of more than 1,500 massed outside the city's arena.

The carpet was not only late; when workmen finished placing it between the VIP dias and the waiting birthday cake, they discovered it was several feet too long. A knife was produced and the carpet cut to its proper length.

Blame municipal cost cutting for the embarrassing moment. City fathers had decided to use the same carpet over which Her Majesty had walked a few minutes earlier when she arrived at the train station.

At an earlier whistle-stop on the royal couple's train tour through Saskatchewan, the crowd was waiting and two Mounties in scarlet tunics were stiffly saluting.

But no one had put down the portable step to make it easier for the Queen to step from the train to the ground.

Also, as the royal entourage set out for the train in Regina, two security guards were almost left behind.

They had gone into the back seat of a police car and when it was time to get out discovered that the car, normally used to transport prisoners, had no inside handles. A frantic message for help on their walkie-talkies solved the problem.

But after the Queen, Philip and 14-year-old Prince Edward left, Harley quietly rolled up his sign and put it in his back-pack.

Iraqi Guards Shoot Police Rescuers

PARIS (Reuter) — Iraqi embassy security guards opened fire on French policemen taking away two Arab gunmen who had held hostages in the embassy throughout the day. One policeman and a gunman were killed in the shooting.

Another policeman and the second gunman were injured as the Iraqi guards poured fire from embassy windows at the police who were taking away the captured gunmen.

Police fired back, stormed into the embassy and arrested two Iraqi guards who were hustled away with their hands tied behind their backs.

Witnesses at the scene, a few doors from the home of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, said people dropped to the ground to escape a hail of bullets as police rushed the two terrorists.

The terrorists had been in command of a frightened group of hostages in the embassy. A third gunman had fled on foot at the outset of the siege.

The terrorists, who stormed the embassy with submachine guns and hand grenades, reportedly had threatened to kill a group of hostages unless they were given a flight to London to free an imprisoned woman comrade.

Two gunmen barricaded themselves inside the embassy and reports indicated they had held up to eight hostages. Another dozen or more people in the building fled to a higher floor and barred the doors to escape the terrorists.

The terrorists reportedly wanted to free a woman who was arrested in London last Friday after a bomb went off under the Iraqi ambassador's car, injuring two bystanders.

The Iraqi story said one of the gunmen claimed to be the brother of Said Hammami, a Palestine Liberation Organization representative.

The PLO has held Iraq responsible for Hammami's Jan. 4 death, saying the shooting was planned by Baghdad-based radical Palestinian leader Abu Nidal.

Plans Under Way To Rescue Whites

Times News Services

LONDON — A London newspaper said Sunday that Britain and America are making plans for an emergency evacuation operation in Rhodesia, where black guerrillas are waging war against the new biracial government.

A report in Sunday's Observer said: "Contingency plans for a major rescue operation backed by the United Nations are reported to be well advanced because of mounting fears in London and Washington that the Rhodesian situation could be approaching a climax."

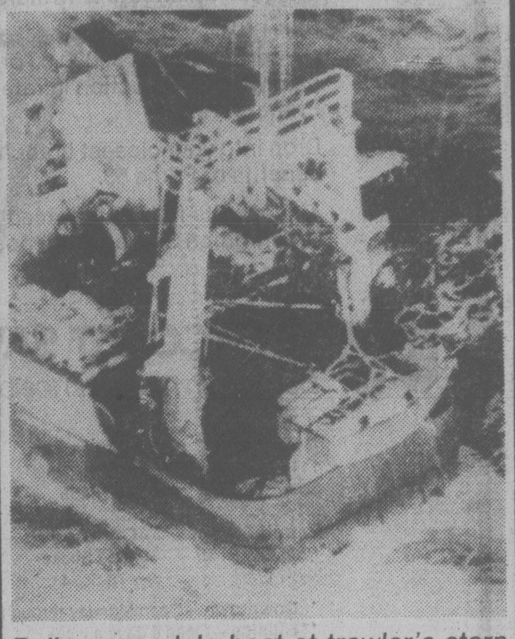
Last Wednesday, an article in London's Daily Mail said Britain's Labor government "is believed to be reluctantly relying on the troops of South African Prime Minister John Vorster to intervene as a last resort" to save whites threatened by a guerrilla takeover.

The reports of a British evacuation plan are not new, but the Observer noted the possible involvement of the United States and United Nations.

Meanwhile, Rhodesian ground troops, jet fighters and bombers attacked Robert Mugabe's guerrilla bases in neighboring Mozambique, saying the guerrillas were planning a terrorist campaign in Rhodesia.

There was no immediate report on casualties and no reaction from the government of Mozambique. It was understood but not confirmed that the Rhodesian invaders were still across the border Sunday night.

The Rhodesian military command said the targets of the "self-defence operations" were "selected terrorist bases" of Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU).



Balloon gondola-boat at trawler's stern

BALLOONISTS FAIL TO REACH FRANCE

CONCARNEAU, France (AP) — Two Britons said they were "absolutely miserable" and "quite disgusted" at having failed by 175 kilometres to make the first crossing of the Atlantic by balloon.

Donald Cameron said he and Maj. Christopher Davey believed "until the last minute that we were going to make it." But a two-metre rip in the balloon early in the flight caused them to lose altitude, and Cameron said "there just wasn't the sort of wind to take us up when we needed it" as they approached the French coast.

Their $300,000 flight came closer to success than any of the 18 previous known attempts, in which six men perished. Cameron, Europe's biggest manufacturer of balloons, said they will try again if they get the opportunity.

Beer Talks Now Brewing

A provincial mediator has been holding exploratory talks with both sides in the two-month old brewery dispute.

The mediator, who has not been identified, talked separately with union and management representatives over the weekend.

The discussions are an encouraging sign since there has been no communication between the two sides for several weeks.

Meanwhile, Eric Harris, negotiator for the Brewery Employers Labor Relations Association, has rejected an offer made by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett to mediate the dispute.

The union had earlier accepted his offer.

No reason was given for keeping the current mediator's name secret.

The Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers Union struck Carling O'Keefe on May 26. Labatts, Molsons, and Columbia breweries locked out their employees June 8.

Meanwhile, the flow of imported U.S. beer is slowly trickling into the main Vancouver wharehouse but none is expected to be re-routed to Victoria for a few days.

Liquor Distribution Branch communications manager Janet Willson reaffirmed today that Victoria is on the list to get some of the 750,000 dozen cases of American beer, but she is unable to say exactly when it will start arriving here.

Some should be in the Victoria stores by the end of the week, however. Willson said she will know more by Wednesday.

WATER CELL KILLS BRAIN

ATLANTA (AP) — Certain strains of a usually harmless, single-cell organism found in lakes and ponds can work its way into the brain and cause death, the U.S. Centre for Disease Control said today.

Dr. George Healey, of the CDC's Laboratory Bureau, said a strain of protozoa can travel through the nose or an ear and cause amoebic meningo encephalitis.

He said several deaths from the disorder have occurred in recent years in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, Louisiana, Texas and California.

AirCan, Union Pact in Works

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada reached a tentative two-year agreement with its 7,200 ground workers Sunday averting a nationwide series of rotating strikes which could have come as early as Wednesday.

The agreement came after five days of continuous negotiations in a downtown Montreal hotel that began after a federal conciliator released his report last Tuesday.

Both the airline and the union declined to discuss details of the tentative agreement saying it would be made public after it was presented to Air Canada's baggage handlers, ramp workers and machinists.

A report in Montreal said the agreement would give the union a 16 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract, retroactive to last April.

The union has been demanding an 18 per cent wage increase over 18 months, while the conciliation board report had recommended a 15 per cent wage increase over two years.

"I'm not releasing details until members are told first," Barry Shaw, the chief negotiator for the union said.

"We think the agreement represents a reasonable offer at this time. You can never get anything you want in one round of negotiation," he said.

Shaw said it would take at least two weeks for the eight members of the union's negotiating committee to organize the ratification meetings for the various locals.

Lid on Wages Helps Canadian Trade

PARIS (CP) — Canada is keeping its labor costs down and, as a result, company profits should continue to increase, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development says.

The OECD makes the forecast as part of an annual economic survey of Canada issued here Sunday.

Coming off a "disappointing" 1977, Canada can expect to continue to slow the increase in labor unit costs, the report says. Because of this, the country "should witness some continued recovery in corporate profits."

"It is . . . likely the more export-oriented companies will experience an above-average rise in profits," the OECD says.

"Labor costs have been brought under much better control and, taking account of exchange rate movements, a marked improvement has taken place in the country's international competitiveness.

"On present indications, the next 12 months are likely to see some further improvement in cost and external trade performance and some recovery in domestic demand.

"Helped by indirect tax cuts, the inflation rate should come down in 1978 and a further substantial improvement in the country's labor cost position seems likely despite the fact that direct price and wage controls are being phased out."

The survey says cost and price pressures have been "winding down" since the imposition of anti-inflation controls in 1975.

Following a "very marked" decline in 1975, Canada "has been fortunate in experiencing the fastest growth rate of foreign markets" in the 24-country OECD area.

This has helped sustain exports.

The report devotes a major section to the Canadian employment scene.

Canada, it says, has experienced the fastest growth in employment throughout the 24 industrialized countries which make up the OECD during the last 10 years.

Despite this, however, "it has also registered one of the highest unemployment rates which at present is at a post-war record."

Weakness in the labor market "was undoubtedly a factor" in the improving cost performance, the report states, but adds "there seems little doubt that the wage and price controls made a contribution."

Sadat Rejects Israeli Peace Bid

ALEXANDRIA (AP) — President Anwar Sadat rejected Israel's compromise offer at the Leeds Castle conference and ruled out further peace talks until Israel recognizes that Egypt will not negotiate its demand for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territory.

Sadat's adamant stand at a news conference Sunday collided head-on with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's statement a week ago that Israel would give nothing back to the Arabs without getting something in return.

Sadat, who met for 2½ hours Sunday with U.S. mediator Alfred Atherton, in effect also called on the United States to put forward its own peace proposals. He said the United States should "act as full partner, not as mediator" in the talks.

"If it is agreed upon officially that land and sovereignty is dropped out of any compromise and Israel is ready to discuss peace in all its aspects, we shall be ready," Sadat said.

He said Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan's proposal of territorial compromise, made at his meeting two weeks ago in England with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammad Ibrahim Kamel and U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance, was "of great significance" and "a new element, but it is a negative element."

Diplomats in Washington said last week that Dayan offered to negotiate a partial Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank of the Jordan River and to discuss who would govern the West Bank in five years.

Previously, Israel would not discuss giving up any land or the future of the West Bank beyond the five-year period of local autonomy for the Palestinian occupants it proposed in December.

Sadat said Dayan's offer was "a step backward, not forward."

He said Begin's refusal to give up Arab land without getting something in return "has pushed this whole problem to a climax" and that Egypt will refuse to talk until Begin retracts it.

Sadat has offered to negotiate guarantees of Israeli security after the West Bank, the Sinai and the Gaza Strip, captured by Israel in 1967, are back in Arab hands.

Sadat said he does not see an Egyptian-Israeli meeting in the near future and said Egypt has not agreed to a foreign ministers' meeting in the Sinai which the United States is trying to promote. Atherton said he discussed the proposed meeting with Sadat but did not elaborate.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli cabinet at its weekly meeting said it is ready to negotiate and that it hopes the "much talked-about conference in the Sinai" will take place. A cabinet spokesman said no new decisions on the Egyptian-Israeli situation were made.

SARKIS' ARMY ENTERS LEBANON

HASBANI, Lebanon (UPI) — The army that President Elias Sarkis hopes will free Lebanon from three years of violence entered the southern border region near Israel today on its first major mission.

"And we are here to stay," said Capt. Jean Torbay, liaison officer for the 500 troops, the first army regulars to enter the region since the 1975-76 civil war.

The convoy crossed the Hasbani River bridge — vacated only hours before by joint Palestinian and Lebanese leftist forces — and crossed into U.N.-controlled territory in the southeast of the country.

The move had been delayed for nearly a year as Syria, Palestinian guerrillas and Israeli-backed Christian militiamen variously raised objections to a rebuilt army Sarkis has said is the key to restoring Lebanese authority.

But army officers said Syria and the Palestinians now back the move. The rightists, who have told reporters they will fight rather than turn over their positions, remained a question mark.

Villagers in the Bekaa Valley town of Majdel Anjar just above the south showered the troops with rice, flowers and applause. "Anjar is behind the return of Lebanese legitimacy," read one banner.

"God bless . . . long live the army," shouted an old couple. The soldiers waved back.

Jet fighters screamed overhead. For the first time in three years they were not Israeli planes, but Lebanese air force Hawker Hunters.

Torbay said the army would be headquartered in the south-central town of Tibnine, well inside territory controlled by the U.N. peacekeeping force that entered after an Israeli invasion in March.

But he said troops also would enter the rightist southeast stronghold of Marjayoun and "all other border areas."

In Beirut, three mortar shells fell early today near the port — forcing a delay in plans to reopen it after a month-long closure forced by clashes between Syrian peace-keeping troops and the Christian militias.

Official Beirut radio said there were no casualties but that the shell explosions, coming after sporadic rifle fire overnight in the Christian east of the city, had turned back port staff reporting for work.

Lopsided Decisions

Two one-sided decisions marked play Saturday in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Albion defeated Alcos by 136 runs at Beacon Hill Park and Nanaimo trounced visiting Cowichan by 122 runs.

Protein Claims 'Blatant' Lies?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protein supplements are sold to health-food enthusiasts through misleading claims that sometimes are blatant misrepresentations, a U.S. federal official concludes after conducting extensive hearings.

Christopher Keller, of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), said on Sunday that contemplated federal regulation of the advertising and labelling of protein supplements was supported by expert testimony during 25 days of hearings over which he presided.

Protein supplements are powders, liquids and pills made from protein isolates. They are sold primarily through health-food stores and by door-to-door and mail-order sales.

During the hearings, "expert witnesses were consistent in their opinion that protein supplements have no significant nutritional benefits," Keller said.

He said the hearings determined that there is "widespread misrepresentation, both express and implied, of the protein need of most Americans."

Among the misleading labels and advertisements for protein supplements are claims that they will aid athletic performance or will help in losing weight, he said.

"The consumption of protein has no benefit in weight reduction."

Are We from a Hidden Planet?

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mankind did not originate in Earth's primordial slime, but may have come from a giant planet "Marduk" which orbits the sun far beyond the last known planet — so says Zecharia Sitchin.

Marduk is a hidden planet located beyond Pluto and is many times the size of Earth, he said. It orbits the sun, passing near Earth only once in 3,600 years.

Sitchin has devoted the past 25 years trying to convince others — through research, decipherings of 3,000-year-old charts and world travel — that Marduk was known to ancient civilizations. He said the technologically advanced inhabitants of Marduk may have genetically created mankind.

By his own admission, Sitchin said the theory "sounds crazy."

But the 58-year-old New York businessman, in Chicago for the Fifth World Conference of the Ancient Astronaut Society, said he is pleased to find United States Naval Observatory astronomers are beginning to share his view about the existence of another planet.

"There is mounting astronomical evidence that there exists one more planet within our solar system," he said.

"The big news of the week, however, is that astronomers of the Naval Observatory in Washington, D.C., confirmed the discovery by one of their colleagues, Dr. James W. Christy, that Pluto has a moon. They also calculated that Pluto is much smaller than hitherto believed.

"The orbits of Haley's Comet were suspected a long time ago to have been caused by planet X, but the irregularities in the orbit of Uranus and Neptune were attributed to Pluto. But now, because Pluto is not as big as originally thought, Pluto can no longer account for these iregularities. They say there must be one more planet farther out than Pluto to account for it, just as I have been saying all along.'"

AUSSIE TUBBER TOPS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gary Deathridge of Melbourne won the 12th annual world championship bathtub race in record time Sunday, clipping two minutes and 35 seconds off the old mark set last year by fellow-Australian Phil Holt.

Deathridge, 23, covered the 54 kilometres from Nanaimo to Vancouver's English Bay in one hour, 29 minutes, 40 seconds.

Holt, who was going for his third world title, finished second, more than 12 minutes behind Deathbridge.

Meanwhile, police said Sunday more than 140 people were arrested in Nanaimo on the weekend during pre-race festivities.

Most of those picked up for drinking-related incidents were allowed to sober up and then released. Only a few charges were laid, police said.

Police also said there were almost no reports of vandalism — a major change from other years when several windows were broken and police clashed with crowds.

Anti-Klan Riot Erupts

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — An anti-Ku Klux Klan demonstration in this racially tense coastal community erupted into a violent melee with police that left more than a dozen people injured and 13 in jail.

"All hell broke loose," police Lieut. Joe Hawkins said as the 300 demonstrators, mostly Mexican-Americans, shouted "Kill the Klan," threw bricks and bottles, and swung pipes and two-by-fours at the Klansmen on Sunday.

At least eight persons were reported seriously injured, including four demonstrators, one Klansmen and three policemen. Seven other policemen were treated for minor cuts and bruises, police said.

The 13 demonstrators arrested were charged with inciting to riot, assaulting policemen, carrying concealed weapons and refusing to disperse.

Hawkins said 300 demonstrators were massed outside Oxnard Community Centre when 40 Klan members — escorted by private security guards and guard dogs — arrived in a moving van for the showing of The Birth of a Nation, the D. W. Griffith film that depicts blacks in demeaning roles.

The Klansmen shouted "white power" at the demonstrators as they marched into the auditorium, and 60 law-enforcement officers used nightsticks to keep the two sides separated.

The Klansmen barricaded themselves inside the community centre while police and demonstrators battled, then slipped out a back entrance and sped away in their moving van.

The clash came while three Mexican-American youths face trial on murder and rape charges in the bludgeoning death of 17-year-old Paul Yenney, a popular Oxnard high school student, and the rape and beating of his girlfriend, Linda Fiene, 18.

Post Office Bitterness

The mail has ground to a halt in Toronto because some mail truck drivers have set up a picket line around the city's main sorting centre, alleging that 133 delivery trucks have deficient steering, brakes, suspension and rear bumper assembly and are not safe to drive.

The strike affects nearly everyone: the struck plant sorts half of all the mail delivered in Canada. Most Canadian magazines, federal cheques, a lot of business mail and who knows how much other correspondence absolutely vital to sender and recipient has been frozen.

All too often this happens with the Canadian mails. If it isn't an unofficial wildcat walkout, it's a formal strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers. What is at the heart of the nation's chronic postal crisis? While solutions seem to be hard to find, The Financial Post attempted to fathom the depths of bitterness and mistrust on both sides that produced the present impasse.

"The brighter and more ambitious you are, the less tolerance you have for this job. Four out of 10 quit within a year and plant potential goes with them. Those who stay are those who can't afford to quit: people locked in by the need for money.

"So management makes the job even simpler so that too much time won't be spent training people who leave — and the job becomes more oppressive. Again turnover rises. You band together to beat the system. You turn virtue upside-down. You become a potential saboteur, an up-the-organization, anti-establishment guerilla fighter."

Post office management, according to numerous studies, has not helped things. In 16 studies carried out in the last 13 years, it was frequently described as authoritarian, unwilling to listen to employees. The latest, done in 1975 by Hay Associates, found the post office had the lowest management climate "of any organization for which we have ever carried out an analysis."

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers believes the post office has not abided by its last contract (the Post's story tends to support it) signed in 1975, and is intensely suspicious of any latter moves by the new postmaster-general, Gilles Lamontagne, towards co-operation. The CUPW has filed 46,000 grievances since 1975 — two for every member — most of them dealing with the main issues of technological change, the use of casual help and the grievance procedure itself.

This constant strife has had predictable effects. One study says the amount of mail handled per worker has dropped 25 per cent in the last decade. Lamontagne admits the post office is only now recovering from the 1975 strike. It lost more than $600 million last year.

Avoiding another disruptive strike while such a disastrous legacy hangs around the post office's neck may be more than anyone can expect. Such bitterness and suspicion need to be exorcised.

Not So Funny

The sight of usually-dignified aldermen discussing problems of barking or messy dogs always seems to provoke much laughter and many jokes, as if no serious debate could be held on such a trivial subject.

This was the case last week when Victoria Ald. John Hayes tried to question some clauses in a city bylaw that would establish a sliding scale of pound fees under which a dog owner would be charged larger penalties each time his dog was picked up on the loose.

Mayor Mike Young made remarks about "hot dogs" and "impounding people instead of dogs," and the rest of council joined in the general hilarity.

It made for some excellent comic relief at an otherwise dull council meeting, but it should also be noted that Hayes had some important points to make. The bylaw, it seems, is leading council into an administrative morass which may not be easily escaped.

There is no forgiveness clause in the bylaw which means if a dog is caught once when he jumps out of his yard at the age of four months and once again at the dignified old age of 10, his owner will still have to pay the same penalty as if his second escape was only a month after his first.

But, if the owner has four dogs and each of them escapes once within a matter of days, each will be considered a first offence. Even sillier, a dog's record follows him around — if he is sold, he will take with him his pound record and his new owner will have to pay increased penalties if he's ever caught again.

How that is to be policed is quite beyond the reaches of the imagination. If Young thinks the police would have trouble establishing the identity of nude bathers, how on earth is anyone to establish the identity of a dog once he has changed owners!

Hayes' efforts to improve the bylaw made for a funny few minutes at the council meeting, but it may not be so funny when the enforcement problems rise to the surface.

Changed Human Rights Law

WINNIPEG — Manitoba's new government, which has found itself in conflict with human rights legislation passed by the former New Democratic administration has introduced amendments to that legislation which permit its own insurance company to discriminate on the basis of sex, and which permit any employer to use yardsticks involving race, religion, color, age, marital status or political belief when these factors are "a reasonable occupational qualification for the position or employment."

The proposed changes have been strongly attacked by NDP members of the legislature, but the new government has taken the stand that it is simply making legal what has to be done, and will not extend the hypocrisy that has existed since the wide-ranging human rights laws were put into place.

Although the previous government passed the laws which prohibited any discrimination on the basis of age or sex, the same government charged women drivers less for their automobile insurance than men, and charged younger drivers more than older ones.

Allows Discrimination

Although the previous government prohibited private sector employers from questioning prospective employees regarding age, sex, or marital status before hiring these employees, the government itself required that all legislature tour guides be single women under the age of 24.

The amendments introduced by the new Conservative government permit an employer to discriminate when hiring on the basis of a physical disability that would prohibit a prospective employee from carrying out the duties associated with a job.

They also lift any prohibition concerning race, religion, color, age, marital status or political belief where such factors affect a particular job.

The amendments contain a specific clause permitting the Manitoba Public Insurance Corporation to discriminate on the basis of sex and age in the charging of automobile insurance premiums.

It is the last amendment that was the trigger to the revision. Soon after he took office and became responsible for the government monopoly insurance corporation, Highways Minister Harry Enns said he was troubled by the obvious conflict of the insurance fee schedule and the human rights legislation.

He said the legislation clearly made illegal the past practice of charging men more than women for their automobile insurance, and of charging young drivers more than older ones, based on actuarial experience. Earlier, Enns said he had several alternatives. His first choice was to do nothing, leaving it up to the courts if anyone felt strongly enough about the situation to challenge it.

He said he could lower the premium on male drivers or simply raise those for females.

But his ultimate course followed the pattern that has been set by the new provincial administration, that of amending laws to make legal what has been past practice.

Some surprising criticism of this action followed the introduction of the amendments. Howard Pawley, the former attorney-general and head of the government insurance agency for the first year of its operation, wanted the government to leave the human rights legislation alone, but at the same time charge young drivers a rate that would more truly reflect the actuarial experience of the government insurance corporation.

SAUL CHERNIAK
. . . opposes rights erosion

His comments brought satisfaction to Enns, who said that the former minister was admitting that there had been a distortion of what the true rates ought to have been, and that middle-aged motorists in Manitoba had been heavily subsidizing the 25 and under age group.

But he said the distorted rates would be continued, but on a basis where they did not conflict with provincial human rights laws.

Other opposition speakers have been vocally concerned about the chipping away at what was their model of human rights laws concerning discrimination on the basis of race and religion.

Saul Cherniak, who for a time was minister of finance in the previous government, said he could not imagine a case where it would be necessary to determine a person's race or religion before hiring him for a job.

When it was suggested that a good case could be made for not hiring an agnostic to become the dean of an institution for Christian learning, Cherniak told of an instance where a Christian was employed as a professor at a Jewish teacher's seminary.

On the question of race, Cherniak said he could only imagine that the change could be applied in the case of a Nazi group refusing to hire a Jew, or the Ku Klux Klan refusing to hire a black, but said he could not imagine that such was the intent of the legislation.

Practical Approach

Cherniak said that under the present law the University of Manitoba's law school had a program where 10 places out of 155 were reserved for mature students. He said his own sister had difficulty studying medicine in Manitoba because she "had two strikes against her: she was a woman and she was a Jew."

What has become clear is that the subject of human rights will not have as high a priority under the new Conservative government as it had under the NDP.

The Conservatives consider their approach more practical, making legal what has been common practice. The original law created some bizarre situations in Manitoba.

A major department store was required to abolish its specialty men's fashion department. Companies with no female employees have had to build special washroom facilities that are never used. Manitoba employers, prohibited by law from asking certain questions of prospective employees, devised some imaginative employment questionnaire forms, which get around the question of marriage by simply asking for the spouse's name, and the question of age by asking whether the applicant lives alone or at home.

At least one prominent member of the human rights commission resigned soon after the government changed. It is possible this individual had some idea of what life would be like under the new government.

'Tube' Baby A Moral Issue

OLDHAM, England — Although it happened in this most scientific of ages there was a lot of mystery about the "miracle" of the test tube baby born here to Lesley Brown.

On the face of it, the successful delivery was a triumph for medicine and science. It was certainly a pleasure for Mrs. Brown and her husband John.

But there remain serious moral questions about the whole episode. The first, and most immediately distasteful, was the aura of commercialism which surrounded the happy event.

Went for $600,000

The Browns "sold their story" to the Daily Mail newspaper for $600,000 and one result was extreme difficulty for journalists from other organizations trying to get information especially before the actual birth took place. Even the hospital — a publicly-owned institution — refused information and referred callers at first to the Mail.

Gynecologist Patrick Steptoe, the brilliant engineer of the medical coup, said he personally advised the Browns to sign up with an international agency to protect them from harassment during the difficult pregnancy. The local paper, the Western Daily Press complained that Dr. Steptoe himself was issuing statements only through the Mail.

But this was not all. The birth was filmed by the government agency the Central Office of Information. The COI also made a deal with the Browns, according to reports, through "representatives" and Dr. Steptoe. One of the terms was that the films were not to be shown for 28 days, although no one knows why. It is also reported the COI will sell the films to television.

Against this sort of background it is not surprising that there has been slight reservation by others reporting the great event.

Dr. Steptoe and his partner, Cambridge scientist Dr. Robert Edwards, who has been working on laboratory fertilization for at least 12 years, have held one press conference since the birth but they are not telling too much about the scientific and medical details until they publish a formal paper on the subject.

Commendable caution, perhaps. But Dr. Edwards hinted at one of the major implications at Prestwich General Hospital. "This work may be developed in other respects," he said. "It may include the reversal of sterilization."

Such an achievement would, indeed, be remarkable. Among those it might help, for instance, would be the British woman currently complaining that she didn't know what she was signing when she agreed to sterilization after having had 13 babies.

Of course a whole range of implications, envisioned by such futurists as Aldous Huxley and George Orwell, have also been raised by the extracorporeal conception. These include genetic management, racial control, reversal where thought politically desirable of low birth rates, and so on.

The questions are: how and how often the Steptoe-Edwards technique can or will be used and on whom? To put it rather bluntly, who is to say who is entitled to a child?

One British columnist has already suggested the future possibility of "rent-a-womb." In the case of the Browns both egg and sperm came from the couple. But what if either, or both, came from a third party, or if the third party was used as the "carrier" for the pregnancy?

Church Has Misgivings

Then there are other moral questions, specifically religious ones.

Like the medical profession, the church has been guarded in its reaction to the birth of baby Brown. The Roman Catholic church, in particular, seems caught in two minds. One as spoken by Cardinal Gordon Gray contains "grave misgivings about the methods and the possible implications and consequences for the future." The other, from Monsignor Augustine Harris, is that "a pro-life expression of love is to be commended and supported."

These views clearly demonstrate the dichotomy of the test tube baby: a blessing to the childless couple or meddling with the process of life.

Infatuated

Trouble with me is I have fallen in love with Canada. And the trouble with lovers is they are always irrational. For instance, I want all of Canada now. Trouble is I can't live simultaneously in Victoria, Lethbridge, Banff, Thunder Bay and Ancaster. I'll have to ration parts of Canada to myself. But us lovers hate rationing. Somehow it dampens inspiration, dulls our sense of sensuous gluttony.

And, speaking of the sensuous glutton, I'd buy bottles of such essences as Yarmouth Seascape or Winnipeg Hay or Cootes Bay Rose Garden. And I'd hang Vancouver Island sunsets all over the house. I fancy chips off any western glacier would make my Canadian whisky on the rocks taste better. But I'd rather be there to sniff them and see them and taste them in the raw. I itch for grand debaucheries in Canadian beauty.

I'll have to get hold of myself. They'll have to teach me the idea of "little by little." But, who are they? Who made Canada? Was it King Henry VII? Or Jacques Cartier? Or Lord Governor Syndenham? Or Pierre Trudeau? I get the happy feeling it was always here. The Iroquois could tell me about it, or the poets; Wordsworth, or Service, perhaps. I must plan. I need help.

And nowadays, I understand, when one needs help one goes to government. I believe one new affair with Canada per quarter is not too much to ask, for an itchy lover. I know there are others in my predicament. We'd make a good-sized boatload, at least. I think we should propose to Ottawa that, in exchange for the faithful remission of our income taxes, we get, at each of the four seasons, a week's cabin time with the Canada of our choice. We could file for our reservations with our tax returns.

Air Canada and Canadian National Railways are usually less than full on their passenger runs. We could fill them up. Hotels, motels, cabins, huts and tents are seldom fully occupied. We could fill them up. Mule trains, horse trails and bicycle liveries are seldom fully booked. We could fill them up too.

All we need for a real lusty love song is a little orchestration from Parliament and the attention of a good conductor from a ministry of culture and recreation. Beautiful music could be made.

This is an era of conservation. We save our non-renewables and use our renewables. Too many travel and vacation facilities are lying idle like bored wallflowers. And there are some things that get better the more you use them. Ask any honest lover. — R. H. Higgins, Hamilton, Ont.

Nurse Likes It

Our district nurse phoned me the day after you published my letter attesting the good character of Hotel Yates (A Fine Hotel, July 25), saying she was so pleased to read it; when she has come to work here "the staff have always tried their best to help."

Credit is also due the owners, whose charges are very reasonable for a home where old age pensioners, so long as they can help themselves and harm no one, may live in freedom and independence.

Credit too is due many other B.C. businesses. I have received generous hospitality at restaurants which make special low charges to OAPs but recent great increases in taxation have already forced one to raise its price. I fear this hotel too may soon have to.

I grieve that money squeezed from many good, useful and well-proven works should be risked in seeking to cure drug addiction by forcible medical treatment which, so my personal experience leads me to believe, will be pouring of oil on a fire! It is no thanks to the medical profession that I have not become addicted to drugs. For 14 years I have resisted medical advice to take three "tranquilizing" drug pills daily. I only take one occasionally after unusual stress. A friend told me her husband has been so needled by his doctor "he looks like a pin cushion and his mental condition has been reduced to that of a vegetable." So let us all live and let live in freedom in beautiful B.C. — Mrs. Georgina Harrison, 512-712 Yates Street.

It Was Returned

Thank you very much for printing my letter (Give It Back, July 28) from the old aged group of our district, the Fernwood Autumn Glow Society.

Following the publicity, I received two anonymous telephone calls, one saying the person was upset that the escritoire he had bought was stolen from us, and he would return it, and the second saying he had returned it to our centre at 1325 Pembroke Street.

The antique escritoire is back with us now, beautifully cleaned by the person who had it. We thank him and most sincerely give him our blessing. We thank you, too, for your courtesy in granting us this publicity. — Joseph Haegert, President, Fernwood Autumn Glow Society.

Small Audiences

How fortunate we are to have the McPherson Theatre in Victoria and the fine summer entertainment there, such as the Victoria International Festival bringing together world renowned musicians, and the Four Seasons Musical Theatre presenting Gilbert and Sullivan. Where else in the world can you see such high standard of entertainment at such reasonable prices?

I was disappointed to find such a small audience at the Gilbert and Sullivan performance when I had enjoyed it so much. I intend to go back and see these fine singers and actors again.

Come on Victorians, let's support our summer festival of entertainment and our lovely McPherson Theatre! — Audrey Miller, 18 Phillips Place.

The German Connection

DOUGLAS FISHER

Is there anything concrete or of lasting importance likely from the post-summit talks of Trudeau and Schmidt in Germany?

The only concrete item is the start of regular talks each year between our officials and German counterparts. But implicit in the communique and several repeated remarks of the prime minister during his visit is an Ottawa resolve to make Canadians more appreciative of the Germans. And not just the German economy's significance or what German business enterprise can do for us!

There still lingers in Canada, as in Britain, what several German journalists call a basic mistrust of the Germans, even though the last war between them and us was over 33 years ago. Of course, it is the older generations in Canada who remember, who still distrust the depth of genuine democratic commitment in Germany or who still await a regeneration of militarism.

It seems to me that this is the heritage Trudeau and the government wish to displace with something bordering great enthusiasm for a Canadian-German relationship, not least on economic issues and co-operation.

In the "OK" words of the senior commentators of Europe, the Bonn government's approach to managing the economy is the "structuralist" one which stresses "sectors" in an economy and the need to adjust sectors and structure to meet new world changes like the manufacturing run-up to efficiency and deep market penetration of countries like Korea.

'Good guys'

Well, this approach, rather than the traditional ones of Ottawa economists based on Keynesian "demand management" or on largely monetary measures, has increasingly captured the Ottawa mandarins, Trudeau among them. So what the Germans have done and will do is in vogue. But, I repeat, much of the Trudeau commitment to Germany is really to cast the West Germans as the "good guys" he sees them to be.

Trudeau is unabashed in his friendship for host Helmut Schmidt. The PM gets a glassy, inordinately open eye and a fixed, small smile around the mouth in his glad moments and when excitement is coursing in him. He was like that throughout the periods we saw him in Germany. Almost a small boy loose in a toy factory.

Why Schmidt, the Social Democrat and chancellor, brings this out in him is a fascinating puzzle. Nothing like this involvement arises in Trudeau when visiting London or Paris, yet this is the third time I've witnessed it with Schmidt. German journalists at Bonn have told me that Schmidt does not have patience with very partisan politicians (W. Germany has its share). He gets thoroughly impatient with the German parliament or at having to play the family father within the Social Democratic party. On the other hand, he enjoys erudite talk which has an historical or philosophical bent, and he can be searingly frank.

While both the papers and TV in West Germany gave prominent coverage to the Trudeau visit and cast an aura of distinction and intellectual "class" around the prime minister, such stories and their critical content were not without references, some almost puzzled, about Canada's very high unemployment and inflation and the debased Canadian dollar. The puzzle seemed to be resolved this way by the Germans: Trudeau has to be an outstanding politician to survive such an economic record.

Fall election

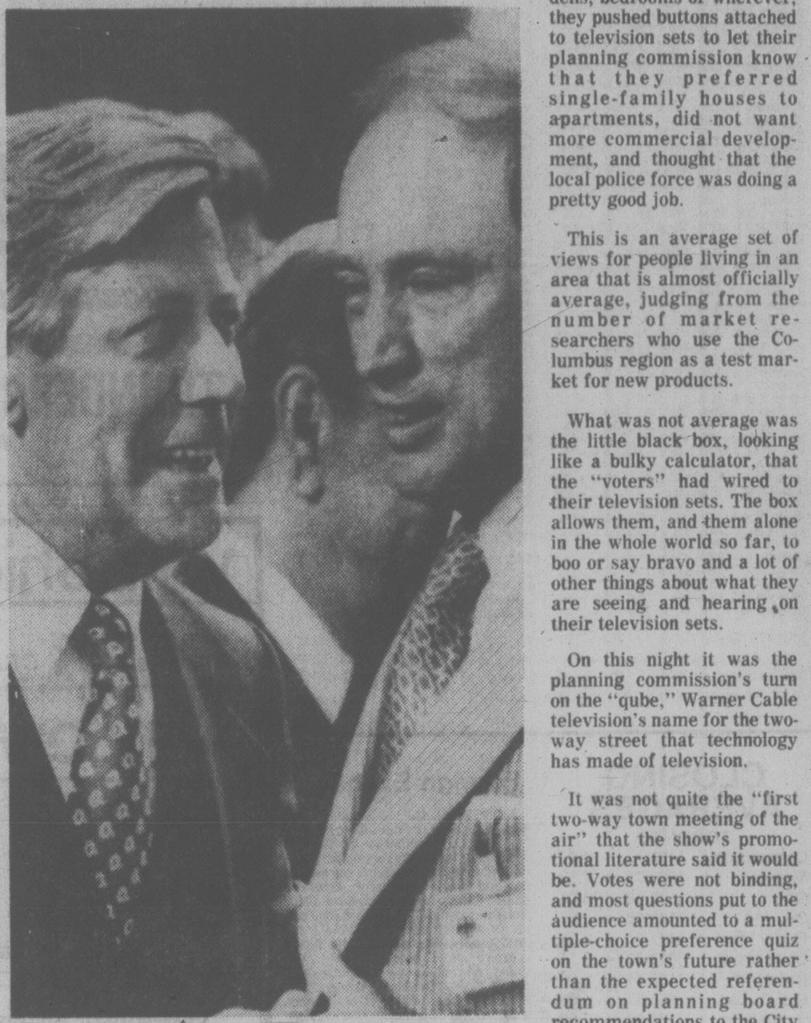
Never in all my trips with a prime minister has there been such a weight of TV and radio persons, as against a mere handful of print or daily paper people. The PM's staff gears to such a representation almost wholly. There's no mistaking the prime minister's preference in his adaption to serving the TV camera first, then radio.

A certainty came to me as Trudeau raced up the steps and into the "prop" plane whisking him to Paris (from where he was to go to Morocco for a fortnight or so). He will return early in August, shake up the cabinet and given a fair Gallup in mid-month, go to the people in an October election.



Schmidt and Trudeau: Like erudite talk

'Electronic Democracy' Debuts

By IVER PETERSON

UPPER ARLINGTON, Ohio — The people of this prosperous little suburb of Columbus lifted a finger one night for electronic democracy.

From their living rooms, dens, bedrooms or wherever, they pushed buttons attached to television sets to let their planning commission know that they preferred single-family houses to apartments, did not want more commercial development, and thought that the local police force was doing a pretty good job.

This is an average set of views for people living in an area that is almost officially average, judging from the number of market researchers who use the Columbus region as a test market for new products.

What was not average was the little black box, looking like a bulky calculator, that the "voters" had wired to their television sets. The box allows them, and them alone in the whole world so far, to boo or say bravo and a lot of other things about what they are seeing and hearing on their television sets.

On this night it was the planning commission's turn on the "qube," Warner Cable television's name for the two-way street that technology has made of television.

It was not quite the "first two-way town meeting of the air" that the show's promotional literature said it would be. Votes were not binding, and most questions put to the audience amounted to a multiple-choice preference quiz on the town's future rather than the expected referendum on planning board recommendations to the City Council.

But electronic opinion-gathering seemed to please a lot of people, including Mike Fitzpatrick and his wife, Jan, who live on Berwyn Street and had a few friends over to talk back to the planners.

When Jack Graf, a commission member, asked if viewers agreed that garage conversions and room additions should require review by an architectural commission first, Fitzpatrick exclaimed with mock greediness: "Hey, I'll vote for that one. It'll mean more work for architects."

Fitzpatrick, an architect of commercial structures, wasn't serious. But his joke brought rejoinders from his friends Jim Wiles, a lawyer, and Dick Millison, an insurance broker. Through a rapid-fire debate, the wives chiming in, the group reached a decision on which button to push ("agree," instead of "agree strongly"). They may not have followed parliamentary rules of procedure, but it was democratic.

Moments later, the multiple-choice responses from the Fitzpatricks and the other viewers jumped on the screen. Most of the other viewers agreed, too, and the commission member went on to the next question.

Qube — it is pronounced "cube," and it doesn't mean anything in particular — has forced some new twists on the old lexicon of television. For example, since last night's show was sent by cable only to Qube subscribers in Upper Arlington, it was a "narrowcast."

Qube officials know that there are about 2,000 Qube subscriber homes in Upper Arlington among the town's 20,000 citizens, of which a peak number of 525 were tuned in to the planning commission presentation at one time.

"I think this is going to put Gallup and Harris in the 19th century," Fitzpatrick said of Qube's ability to gather and display opinion poll results almost instantaneously.

At $19.95 for installation and $10.95 monthly charge, about 21,000 people in Qube's franchise area have subscribed since the two-way system was added to Warner's cable service on Dec. 1.

The system offers 30 channels, including ten "premium" channels carrying recently released films, sporting events, drama and soft-pornographic movies that are charged to the subscriber, for between $1 and $3.50, as they are tuned in.

Because of the "response mode" of the Qube box, however, there is also a great deal of live programming from Qube studios that allows viewers to play in contests with the studio or with each other, or give a thumbs up — or down — on a particular performer.

"The kids love it to watch the gong show," Fitzpatrick said. He was referring to "Talent Search," Qube's locally produced amateur hour similar to the nationally broadcast show. "They like to hit number four button. That's the hook that gets the guy off the stage."

Sitting Tight and Stylish

russell baker

My policy on fashion is to sit tight. When a garment goes out of style, I do not discard it and rush to buy the season's latest look. I hang the unfashionable threads in the attic and sit tight.

Sooner or later, if you sit tight long enough and refuse to panic, fashion will travel full circle and bring your old wardrobe back into high style. Or so I have always believed. For this reason, I have always sat tight and bided my time.

The problem, of course, is that fashion can be devilishly slow in getting back around to the treasures waiting in the attic. As a result, one is sometimes hard pressed for something suitable for self-adornment when the occasion calls for looking like a peacock.

* * *

Caught in this social quagmire the other day, I was near tears at the humiliating prospect of having to step out in my all-purpose bank teller's pinstripes and paisley necktie when I remembered my oatmeal suit.

The fashion trend seemed propitious for the oatmeal suit. I recalled it as being very tight, and tightness had become decidedly chic. Most of the fancier men had taken to having their clothes molded to their forms, a fashion on which I had decided to sit tight, not because body-molded clothes seemed like a poor long-term investment, but because my form is not at its most fetching when every ounce of flab can be seen rippling dazzlingly under the fabric.

The oatmeal suit had always been tight, even in the Stone Age of men's fashion from which it dated. I well remembered the astonishment produced when, taut in its hard, lean contours, I appeared among men wearing suits which, in the style of that day, flapped about them like sheets in a gale.

The oatmeal suit was not made of oatmeal, of course. It was simply the color of oatmeal, before cooking. I had paid perhaps $49 for it at the time of purchase, which would be about $200 in present-day American currency. As for its age, I remembered wearing it at the Democratic National Convention that nominated Estes Kefauver rather than John Kennedy for the vice presidency.

With the oatmeal suit and a pair of stiletto-toed black shoes stored in the attic since an Atlantic crossing on the Mauretania, a social triumph seemed possible.

And there it was! Hung away between a double-breasted blue flannel with pegged cuffs and shoulders broad enough to conceal a matching-gun holster — an investment last used for a marriage, but still ready to go the instant the zoot suit returns to fashion — and my indestructible Scottish thorn-proof suit.

* * *

The Scottish thorn-proof was already out of style when purchased in 1953, being cut with voluminously flaring trousers and pinch-waisted narrow jacket in the fashion reminiscent of Jazz Age cakewalkers. At $25 off the rack in Edinburgh, however, it seemed an irresistible bargain which would turn other men puce with envy once the cakewalker style made its comeback.

After some miserly cackling over my horde, I extracted the oatmeal suit and let it contain me. The lapels curled outward. Flaps on the jacket pockets curled this way and that, in the frizzled style now so popular in female hair.

The suit was no longer pencil slim. In fact, the trousers were wide enough to shelter a tete-a-tete. The seat ballooned and the jacket hung in festoons from the shoulders.

* * *

No, the oatmeal suit had not fattened and grown with age, nor had I shrunk. Fashion had simply played another of its vile jokes. What had seemed slim compared with the tent-stylings popular at its creation now seemed flowing compared to the form-molded styles of its maturity. The slim look had come back, sure enough, but the pirates in the garment business had made sure it bore so little resemblance to the original that anyone who tried to get away without buying a new suit would pay a high price in humiliation.

They're not going to crush me that easily. I have cancelled all my engagements and decided to sit tight. The oatmeal suit is back in the attic. One of these days the garment business will slip up, and a man wandering through the attic will thank his lucky stars he had a great-granddaddy who was ages ahead of the trend.

Commons Mood Poisonous: Tory

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Progressive Conservatives are ready and eager for an autumn federal election because the country can't afford to carry on under the present "limping" government led by an "aging prime minister," the official opposition house leader said Sunday.

Walter Baker, Tory MP for Ottawa's Grenville Carleton constituency, described the mood of the Commons as "poisonous" after the members had been led to believe by Prime Minister Trudeau that they were heading into a spring campaign.

Members and the whole electoral system was "double-crossed" by the prime minister cancelling election plans when he learned the polls showed he might lose power, he said.

"I think the system was double-crossed by the prime minister and I think that is bound to be reflected in Parliament if it reconvenes Oct. 10," he said. He was interviewed on CTV's Question Period program.

He said the opposition has a job to do in the House. It must debate strenuously and as long as it can, subject to the rules of the House, those things with which it disagrees and on which it has a different point of view from that of the government.

"That's our job, but the mood of the House has changed within which that job is going to be done," he warned.

Baker said he believed there would be a fall election. He said if there is not an election there would have to be by-elections, more than the eight that have been called for Oct. 16 otherwise there would be many Canadians unrepresented in parliament.

"The political system in Canada is ready for the accounting that a general election means, and you can bet we're reedy," Baker said. He favored a fixed term for elections every four years in this country and it could be worked out under the parliamentary system, in his opinion.

The Conservative MP said the recent Gallup Poll results were not as favorable to the opposition as might have been expected in view of the government's record. However, poll results fluctuated depending on whether the prime minister or Opposition Leader Joe Clark had a high profile in the period the poll was taken.

The PM's announcements about revising the constitution and his attendance at the international summit gave him a high profile, he added.

Trudeau's decision to call off the election sent a number of people scurrying back to an "undecided" position.

Baker was confident there will be a "movement away from the government" when the election is finally called.

He was also confident that Conservative support in Quebec will surprise the skeptics. But he conceded that the Tory support in Quebec would probably be on a par with Liberal support west of the Manitoba-Ontario boundary — relatively small. That was not good for the country.

Baker said if he was a Liberal MP in the Ottawa area he would be embarrassed by the way the government is going about declaring positions redundant and "then shipping the jobs off to be done by those redundant people in the private sector."

RAIN BILL MAY TOP $8m MARK

EDMONTON (CP) — The damage-claim bill for the July 11 rainstorm which pounded Edmonton may top the $8-million mark.

Claims received so far total just over $5 million, according to Ron Shaw.

Ernie Tyler, provincial disaster services director, said more than 1,800 claims have been received so far.

Pie-in-the-Sky Scheme

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — An enterprising post office employee says he has capitalized on published reports that the town is being bombarded with electromagnetic radiation from the Soviet Union.

Matt Swiergosz said he is selling aluminum pie plates for 25 cents each that carry the label, Russia radio beam deflector.

"We're doing our best to protect the residents of Kirkland Lake," Swiergosz said.

An amateur communications enthusiast and evaluator of federal social-cultural programs for the department of the secretary of state said last week that low-frequency radio waves originating in the Soviet Union have been affecting the health of people in Kirkland Lake.

Andrew Michrowski of the department's evaluation directorate said the phenomenon, which he has been studying as a hobby, could have an effect on people with heart, lung and emotional problems.

However, federal scientists in Ottawa, including officials of the National Research Council and the federal communications department, said there is no scientific basis to Michrowski's theory.

FOUR CHUTES TO THE WIND, was one of the sights over Vancouver Sunday as part of the city's Sea Festival. The jumpers, two men and two women, attached themselves to the canopy of the parachute below them and the bottom jumper steered them all to English Bay beach.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR GOV'T FORGER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Canada-wide warrant has been issued for the arrest of Walter Hans Muller, a former Vancouver federal Social Credit candidate charged with forging government memos.

Muller now is living in his native Switzerland.

Federal prosecutor Richard Israels told a provincial court hearing that "we are not thinking of extraditing him on these matters."

Provincial Court Judge Kerry Smith authorized the warrant and agreed to have a preliminary hearing set for Aug. 14 called off after Israels told the court it is unlikely Muller would return to Canada to face the charges.

Muller's lawyer, Bernard Isman, told the court he had received a letter from his client indicating Muller has no plans to return to Canada.

Crime Probe Head Beaten

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Denys Dionne, chairman of the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime, was beaten by four unknown assailants Friday night near his west-end Montreal home, police have confirmed.

Judge Dionne was apparently not seriously injured by his attackers. Police said the four kicked and hit the judge but did not attempt to rob him.

A police spokesman was unable to give details of the incident Sunday, but one published report said Judge Dionne had just finished dining with friends at a restaurant and was walking to his home around midnight Friday when he was attacked.

According to the report in the French-language Sunday newspaper Dimanche-Matin, the attackers fled after Judge Dionne took refuge in another restaurant. The report also said the judge did not tell police about the attack.

Drivers Go Left

Port Open

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — The 37,528-ton Greek grain carrier Fortini has launched the 1978 shipping season at this Hudson Bay port.

The grain carrier arrived about 5:30 a.m. Saturday, to load one million bushels of barley. It had been expected earlier but was delayed by ice.

ANTI-SEPARATIST MOVE GEARING UP

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan says the Quebec Liberal Party will hold a fund-raising and membership drive in the fall to begin its campaign against independence in the coming referendum.

The Liberal leader said on radio station CJAD Sunday the party's headquarters and its regional associations would have to raise $2 million during the drive to ensure the party operated at full capacity through 1979.

"We used to finance the party through surpluses from election campaigns where major donations came from corporations," Ryan said.

"Now we're forbidden by law from doing that and we've got to organize our financing so it comes from the members and the general public."

He said party membership has grown by 30,000 members during the last three months to a total of 86,000.

Ryan, who was on vacation with his family in the Quebec Laurentians, said he was devoting much of his time in preparing party policy for the referendum campaign.

"I hope to have a major working document ready in two weeks that will have the leading argument in support of the Canadian option," Ryan said.

He said the document, to be ready for a party meeting in September, "will describe some of the conditions that will have to be met for the Canadian option to be completely acceptable to Quebecers."

Streaking Rose Brings Sidney Into the Act

By The Associated Press

Sidney who?

The goal-oriented Cincinnati Reds third baseman is looking past the all-time National League hitting mark of 44 consecutive games which Wee Willie Keeler achieved in 1897. After that, all he can see is the magic mark of 56 by Joe DiMaggio—until he conjured up another target.

"Right now, I'm going after Sidney Stonestreet's 48-game streak," Rose told reporters who had just watched the Reds captain hit in his 43rd consecutive game. "You probably never heard of him. I just made him up."

Rose went 2-for-5 Sunday, getting both hits off Philadelphia starter Larry Christenson, as the Reds downed the Phillies 5-3.

Tonight, Cincinnati begins a three-game set in Atlanta against the Braves, whose pitchers had a lot of trouble Sunday against Montreal. Tom Boggs, Craig Skok and Mickey Mahler combined on a 28-hitter, giving up a National League record 58 total bases, eight home runs (tying the major league record) and 19 runs to the Expos.

The Braves, however, hope to fare a little better tonight with knuckle-baller Phil Niekro going against the Reds.

"He (Niekro) called me before the game and asked me to be on his television show before Monday's game," Rose said. "I said I would if he gave me all fastballs to hit."

Rose's first hit of the game was a single to left field in the fifth inning. He had flied out and grounded out in his previous two at-bats under skies that threatened to shorten the game because of rain.

"I could see the weather was threatening, and with me 0-for-2, I could see it starting to rain and then calling the game," Rose said. "The fans would have ripped the stadium down. I didn't want that to happen."

George Foster hit his 25th homer of the year, tying him with Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia for the league lead, and Dan Driessen hit his 13th for Cincinnati. Tom Hume, 5-10, got the win with relief help from Manny Sarmiento and Doug Bair, who got his 19th save by getting the final two outs.

In other games, Montreal clobbered Atlanta 19-0, San Francisco Giants swept a pair from Chicago Cubq 4-2 and 1-0, Pittsburgh Pirates topped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, San Diego Padres edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 and Houston Astros nipped New York Mets 4-3.

Montreal's offensive display tied two major league records, broke a league mark and broke a club record. The Expos' eight home runs—three by Larry Parrish—tied a major league record previously held by six clubs, three in each league. Andre Dawson tied another major league record held by 18 others by hitting two home runs in one inning. Montreal's 58 total bases—14 by Parrish, who doubled before his three homers—broke the 85-year-old league mark set by Cincinnati, and the Expos' 28 hits set a club record.

Almost overlooked in the barrage was Woody Fryman's seven-hit shutout. Fryman, 6-7, also doubled twice, the second time driving in a ninth-inning run.

Meanwhile, in the American League, those booming Boston bats are silent, having produced just three runs in the last 46 innings, and Red Sox manager Don Zimmer is baffled as to how to solve the problem.

"When you're in a slump, you're in one," said Zimmer after the Red Sox were beaten by Kansas City Royals 2-1 Sunday for their 10th loss in the last 12 games.

"I never thought I'd see a period like this one with this ball club," added Zimmer, whose team's .277 season batting average is the second-best in the major leagues. "Our pitching hasn't been all that bad, we're just not getting a hit when we need one."

Boston's lead, a comfortable nine games as recently as July 19, now is now to 4½ games in the East Division over Milwaukee Brewers, who beat Toronto Blue Jays 10-5. (See scores on page 10).

PETE ROSE. . .still going strong

CITY JUNIOR QUALIFIES FOR BOTH GOLF TEAMS

RICHMOND — Rick Gibson, a 16-year-old junior from Victoria, fired a one-over par 73 Sunday in the final round of the British Columbia Invitational and qualified for both the provincial men's (Willingdon Cup) and junior teams.

Gibson, who had a 74 at Squamish on Saturday, finished with a six-round total of 451 in the junior event, one shot better than Ian Harper of Nanaimo. The first four rounds were played last week as part of the B.C. junior championship.

Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, shot rounds of 76 and 75 to finish with a 427 total for six rounds and claim the first berth on the Willingdon Cup team.

Dave Mick of Colwood, finished one shot behind Roxburgh, while Gibson, a member at both Cedar Hill and Uplands, was another three strokes back.

Roxburgh had started the invitational with a seven-shot lead over Mick following the 72-hole B.C. Amateur two weeks ago in Victoria.

Bob Mitchell of Richmond earned the final Willingdon Cup berth. He shot a par 72 Sunday for a 435 total, and edged Sandy Harper of Nanaimo, by one stroke.

The other members of the B.C. junior team are Darryl James of 100 Mile House and Brian O'Keefe of Vernon. Both finished with 455 totals.

The Willingdon Cup interprovincial team championship and Canadian Amateur will be played Aug. 23-26 in Laval, Que. The Canadian junior and interprovincial team championship will be held the following weekend in Sydney, N.S.

Budgets, Parks Too Busy For Championship Series?

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Victoria Budgets are the overall pennant winners of the Northwest Men's Fastball League, and they may have to settle for that honor because time is at a premium in the closing stages of the 1978 campaign.

The defending Canadian champions wrapped up regular league play in a blaze of glory but a playoff series is a question mark because of park and schedule demands.

Budgets ran their winning streak to 16, including 11 straight in league play, by sweeping aside Westside Federal of Seattle at Royal Athletic Park on Sunday. Budgets downed Westside 2-1 and 7-0 after clinching second-half honors the previous night with 3-1 and 2-1 victories over Tacoma B&I Sports.

The Northwest League recently approved a championship playoff series, a best-of-three affair, matching the first-half winner against the club with the best record in the second-half.

Budgets won 11 of 12 second-half games but shared first-half honors with Woodinville Lumber, each with 8-4, won-lost records. Since Victoria and Woodinville split their first-half meetings, league officials decided to break the deadlock by counting the runs scored. The Washington State team won the nod, by one run.

That was to set up a Victoria-Woodinville playoff series. The playoff, however, becomes a question mark because of Victoria's remaining schedule and other commitments on Royal Athletic Park.

Budgets play Reading, Pa., Barbells, who shared the world championship with Victoria and New Zealand after rain curtailed the 1976 tournament, here this coming weekend. Portland then comes to town Aug. 12-13 and the provincial senior men's tournament takes over Royal Athletic Park Aug. 18-19-20.

The B.C. senior "B" men's championships follow Aug. 26-27 at Royal Athletic Park.

Since Budgets wound up with the best overall record, they draw the home-field advantage for the playoff series.

Both Tacoma and Westside threatened to put an end to Victoria's winning manners but succumbed to Budgets' sixth-inning sting. That was the inning that turned things around in three of the four weekend games as Victoria boosted its overall season's record to 43-15.

Saturday night, Bob Burrows' two-run homer in the sixth broke a 1-1 deadlock and provided pitcher Andy Konopacki with his 21st victory of the season. Budgets had trailed, 1-0, until Randy Benn tied it with a solo homer in the fifth.

Same comeback format in the second game. Trailing 1-0, Budgets' Carl Walker singled pinch-runner John Green home with the tying run in the fifth and Reg Underwood's double and a single by Bob Holness produced the winner in the sixth.

The sixth-inning sting also worked Sunday. Budgets managed only two hits off Gord King, who was protecting another 1-0 lead. But the blows — a double by Dennis Eckert and a single by Holness — combined with a walk to Underwood and a throwing error to allow Victoria to score two runs and provide Konopacki with victory No. 22.

Bizarre Yankee Finish To a Grotesque Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday was Oldtimers' Day at Yankee Stadium, a day for nostalgia and the fond remembrance of old heroes. But the cheers of the 46,000 fans turned to boos when Al Rosen, president of New York Yankees, was introduced.

After all, Rosen once was a hated member of Cleveland Indians who battled the Yankees tooth-and-nail during the pennant races in the 1950s. Now, as second-in-command to owner George Steinbrenner, he had played a large and villainous part in forcing the resignation last Monday of Billy Martin, the Yankees' popular manager.

The crowd began to chant: "We want Billy, we want Billy." Rosen stood there amist the other former baseball greats and took it, a knowing smile on his face.

Then, the public address system intoned that Hall of Famer Bob Lemon, who replaced Martin last Tuesday, would "continue as manager of the Yankees through the 1978 and 1979 seasons."

Lemon came out and the booing grew louder. But announcer Bob Sheppard finally drowned out the hecklers.

"And the Yankees would like to announce at this time, introduce and announce at the same moment that the manager for the 1980 season and hopefully for many years after that, will be No. 1 . . . Billy Martin."

The crowd went wild. "Unbelievable," said former Yankees great Joe DiMaggio.

Billy the Kid was back. In a stunning, shocking turn of events that overshadowed all the Yankees' looniness of the last two years, Steinbrenner welcomed Battling Billy back as manager, beginning with the 1980 American League season after 1½ years of rest and recuperation to correct a liver condition.

During that stretch, Martin will work as a consultant, evaluating talent in the organization.

He also must give up drinking, except for beer.

It was a bizarre but fitting end to a grotesque week that began with Martin verbally blasting outfielder Reggie Jackson and Steinbrenner at a Chicago airport July 23—"They deserve each other," he said. "One's a born liar and the other's convicted"—and then submitting his resignation a day later at a tearful news conference in Kansas City.

The Yankees also announced that Lemon, who took over as manager last Tuesday, would become general manager in 1980.

"I am probably going to be ripped a little for being soft maybe or being stupid," said Steinbrenner, "but let me tell you this—there are times in life when you should be tough and times when you have to be rigid, and there are times when you have to be understanding and have compassion.

"And I am not trying to sound corny. I am trying to tell you exactly what happened. Al and I discussed this at length and I told him my feelings. I told him that in my gut, as much had gone on both ways, that I didn't feel what had happened was right.

"Well, I've always thought better with my gut than my heart, and if being compassionate toward a man who has the courage to admit that he has a concern for his health and emotional well-being, and who came to me after his resignation when he had nothing really to gain and said he was sorry for what he had said and admitted that he committed an indiscretion in denying it—if caring about wanting to work with and help that man is a sign of softness, then I'd a helluva rather be called soft and stupid than a rock and brilliant."

Noting that his conviction for making illegal contributions to the campaign of former president Richard M. Nixon was a matter of public record, Steinbrenner called Martin's airport remarks "a small mistake . . . in the total picture."

For his part, a contrite Martin finally admitted that he made the remarks attributed to him concerning Jackson and Steinbrenner, although he denied it in his resignation speech.

"When I quit the other day, I called George and told him I apologized for what was said," Martin said. "I did say it. I don't know why I said it. I was angered at the time. I had no reason to say it and I feel very bad about it."

Squire Swings Hot Bat As Gorge Takes Pair

Mike Squire came up with two outstanding games at the plate Sunday to lead Gorge Hotel to a sweep over Capital Radiators in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League doubleheader at Lambrick Park.

Squire smashed out a leadoff home run in the fifth inning to provide the winning run as Gorge edged Capitals 7-6 in the opener and then collected four hits, including a double, in four trips to help key a 10-3 decision in the second game.

He was lucky in the opener. A pop fly from one of the first pitches Squire faced was dropped by the Capital third-baseman. But Mike made no mistake on the next pitch, driving it out through left centre field to plate the winning tally.

In the second game, Squire scored twice on his four hits and made three putouts at centre field.

Gorge left-fielder Gary Law helped out in the opener with a three-for-four performance, scoring once, driving in one run and stealing three bases while Rick Cook picked up the pitching victory with an eight-hitter.

Ross Barnett did just about everything for Capital while absorbing the first loss. He was two-for-two, scored twice and drove in two runs at the plate and struck out 10 and walked only three from the mound.

Rookie Rick Shenton picked up the second pitching victory with a three-hitter. He had a one-hitter going until the seventh inning and had retired 13 straight batters before running into a little trouble in the final frame.

Dave Van Gylswyk was two-for-three to drive in two runs for Gorge in the second game.

Own Advice Helps Coach Snap Streak

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Don Rogelstad practised what he preached Sunday night and finally cracked the winner's circle.

The 28-year-old pitching coach for Victoria Mussels got his first start in nearly a month and scored his first win of the season in the Northwest Baseball League, a 4-2 gem over Bellingham Mariners at Royal Athletic Park.

The win was the third in a row for the last-place Mussels against the front-runners in the league's northern division. They finished a road trip with a pair of decisions over the first-place Walla Walla Padres before beating Bellingham Sunday in the first of a three-game home stand. Mussels and Bellingham resume action tonight at 7.

"I was working with some of our younger pitchers, showing them how to get maximim arm velocity, and I figured what was good for the goose was good for the gander," Rogelstad, 28, said after snapping his personal losing streak at four.

He got together with manager Jim Chapman, who helped him pattern his delivery so his pitching arm was moving fastest at the point he released the ball.

As a result, Rogelstad was able to mix a good fastball and curve with excellent control to handcuff Bellingham on six hits during his 7⅔-inning stint. He needed relief help from Scott Harding in the eighth and Brian Peterson in the ninth.

Rogelstad struck out one and walked only one.

"I've had good control all season," he pointed out. "I've only walked six this year and two of those were intentional. In my last three appearances (all in relief) I've allowed one earned run in 14 innings."

He figured sharp fielding was instrumental in the win.

A circus catch by centre fielder Steve Kasunic with a runner on second in the eighth was the key play of the game. Kasunic crashed into the fence at the 390-foot mark and reached over to one-hand what appeared to be a sure home run by Mike White that would have tied the game.

And Al Alpaugh, playing third base so Chapman could run the team from the bench, dazzled a paid crowd of 237 with a fifth-inning throw to first that caught Dave Valle, whose hot smash had handcuffed him.

As it was, Rogelstad still might not have drawn the starting assignment if his mates had arrived home from Walla Walla in time to get a decent night's sleep. They had been on the bus all night and didn't arrive until 10 a.m. Sunday.

Rogelstad, meanwhile, had come home three days earlier to set up a special bingo night promotion for tonight's game. Fans arriving early at Athletic Park will get a chance to play at least four bingo games for cash prizes starting at 6:15 and there will be additional bingo during pauses in the game until the seventh inning.

The early return enabled Rogelstad to turn in by 11 Saturday night, making him the only Mussel pitcher who wasn't bleary-eyed.

Tired or not, Mussels rapped nine hits off starter and loser Rich Graser (0-1) and Chris Krujewski, who relieved him in the fourth. Alpaugh, Jim Thamaan and Doug Morganti each had two hits. Only Mariner to solve Rogelstad to any degree was Carlos Montamoras with a single, double and bases-empty homer in the sixth, his fourth of the season.

Linda Collects Three Victories

BELLINGHAM — Linda Martin turned in a sparkling performance at the weekend to spark a good showing by Victoria Flying Y athletes at the annual Bellingham Striders' track and field classic.

Linda earned three firsts and a second in the peewee girls' division. She won the 100 (12.9 seconds) and 200-yard dashes (27.6) and the long jump (14 feet, 9 inches) and was second in the shot put.

Patricia Wellman and Debbie Ball also posted victories. Wellman, who placed second in the midget girls' 800 and high jump, won the 1,500 in four minutes, 45 seconds while Ball won the peewee javelin with a 58-foot, 10-inch throw.

African Athletes Arrive in Edmonton

By GLENN COLE

EDMONTON (CP) — Officials of the Tanzania delegation refused to be drawn into any controversy Sunday night about Nigeria's withdrawal last week from the Commonwealth Games.

The Tanzanian team arrived late Saturday night just an hour after an Air Canada 747 brought athletes from Kenya, Zambia, Mauritius, Gambia, Lesotho and Malawi. Also reported on the way were Ghana and Swaziland.

Rowland Makunda, chef de mission for the Tanzanian team, said he would offer no comment on how the pull-out by Nigeria might affect the Games. Nigeria withdrew Wednesday saying New Zealand had circumvented the 1977 agreement of Commonwealth heads of government to do all they could to restrict sports with segregationist South Africa.

"Our minister of sport and culture has been here for three days and he is going to hold a press conference on the 10th of August and you can shoot as many questions as you want to him then," Makunda said.

Tanzania was one of the prime movers behind a mass walkout of 27 African countries at the 1976 Olympics in protest over New Zealand's sports relations with South Africa.

That meant that Filbert Bayi, Tanzania's brilliant 25-year old long-distance runner, could not match steps with John Walker of New Zealand in Montreal. They will not race against each other here either because Walker is injured and will not attend the Games.

A total of 204 athletes competing at Algiers arrived here Saturday night and Jean-Claude Ganga, the secretary-general of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa, said he was "here to make sure Africa will take part in the Commonwealth Games."

Asked if there was any possibility that the Africans might decide to withdraw at the last moment as they did in Montreal, Ganga replied:

Sierra Leone, which had accepted an invitation, pulled out at the last minute citing lack of financing to send its five-member team here.

Botswana and Uganda never said they were coming and Ganga explained that the members of the Supreme Council are all sovereign nations that may act independently despite the fact their organization has voted to take part.

Neither Makunda nor Ganga would comment on whether Nigeria had put pressure on other African countries to withdraw.

"I would like to emphasize that we are very glad to have been able to make our way to the Comhonwealth Games," said Makunda. "It gives that much more pleasure because it comes 10 years after I was in Canada on other business.

"I feel very glad to be revisiting your country. I hope the Games will go on very well. If I remember the Canadian hospitality, if it hasn't changed, we are going to have a good time during the Games."

Mukunda noted that his country had brought teams in track and field, badminton, cycling and boxing.

"Our boys understand they will be facing tough opposition. They are well prepared for it. They will fight to the best of their capability. We hope we will do well here, regardless of the opposition."

U.S. Drivers Pluck Plums At Nanaimo

With Doug Larsen collecting all the plums Saturday, British Columbia drivers enjoyed their big harvest during the Strawberry Cup program at Western Speedway on Saturday.

American drivers plucked the first four spots in the 50-lap main event at Nanaimo's Grandview Bowl on Sunday.

Les May of Spokane, Lonnie Lonsdale of Seattle, George Robertson of Lewiston, Idaho, and Blaine Sneva of Spokane swept the first four places in Nanaimo main event.

Larsen completely dominated Saturday's racing at Western. He topped the time trials with a near-record run of 16.74 seconds, took the "A" dash and fast heat and then capped his night's work by capturing the Strawberry Cup.

A Saving Solution By Olympic Group

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — A new proposal for financing any losses incurred by Los Angeles in staging the 1984 Summer Olympic Games will probably be submitted to a vote at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee executive board here next month, an IOC spokesman says.

Monique Berlioux, head of the IOC secretariat, was commenting on a statement by Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley that the U.S. Olympic Committee had agreed to underwrite any financial losses the city suffered in putting on the Games.

Berlioux said IOC headquarters had not yet been officially informed of the new proposal, and all she knew about it was what she had read in the press.

The plan is aimed at resolving a dispute between Los Angeles city authorities and the IOC over financial responsibility for the Games.

Berlioux said she expected IOC president Lord Killanin to consult members of the 89-man IOC about the proposal, but a decision was unlikely before the nine-member executive board meets here on Aug. 29.

The IOC provisionally awarded the 1984 Games to Los Angeles, but later rejected a proposal by city authorities that a group of Los Angeles businessmen accept financial responsibility.

IOC rules state that the host city must assume all costs involved in staging the Games, but Los Angeles authorities, worried about estimates that they could incur losses of millions of dollars, have been seeking ways of covering their liability.

Barn-Builder Able To Repay a Loan

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Rod Funseth constructed a victory in the Greater Hartford Open golf tournament that was as solid as the barn he constructed last month near his home in Napa, Calif.

And the $42,000 first-prize money Funseth earned will be used to pay bills for the barn that houses his two Arabian horses and to repay his daughter, from whose bank account Funseth had to borrow money for the building.

"Like my wife said the other day, we had some bills building the barn and we had to borrow some money," he said after tying a Hartford Open record with a 72-hole total of 264, or 20-under-par. "This just pays for the barn."

Funseth, a native of Spokane, also tied the record for the lowest score on the front nine on Thursday when he shot a six-under-par 29. He ended the first round with a 65, and then fell back to fifth with a 67. The curly-haired golfer's 68 on Saturday gave him a 54-hole total of 200.

Funseth was one stroke behind the leaders going into Sunday's final round at the 6,534-yard, par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course. He recorded five birdies on the front nine, including a 25-foot putt and a 20-foot chip-in. The 45-year-old Funseth was never headed from that point on.

It was his third victory since joining the Professional Golfers' Association tour in 1961 and the first-place money more than doubled his 1978 winnings to a total of $80,672.

The last round was a disappointment for Phil Hancock, who either led or was tied for the lead for the first three rounds. After scoring back-to-back 64s Thursday and Friday and adding a 71 Saturday, Hancock soared to a four-over-par 75 Sunday. Instead of taking home the $42,000 first prize, he earned $1,715 in a tie for 22nd place.

Sharon Spins Perfect Game

Vancouver Merchants wrecked Victoria Skylarks' hopes for a second-place finish in the Inter-City Senior Women's Softball League but they couldn't tarnish Sharon Ferrill's pitching masterpiece.

Merchants won three of four weekend games at Hyacinth Park. That may have doomed Skylarks, who now have completed their schedule, to a third-place finish.

But it was the game they won that had the Skylark supporters talking.

Sharon produced a perfect game as Skylarks defeated Sue Shandal, the league's leading hurler, and Merchants 9-0 on Saturday. Merchants won the first game of the doubleheader, 4-1, and then swept a pair Sunday, 3-1 and 4-2.

Ferrill struck out seven in facing the minimum 18 batters. The game was called after the sixth inning because of a seven-run rule in effect in the league.

Merchants got their revenge Sunday by defeating Sharon in the 4-2 game. All four Vancouver runs were unearned.

Catcher Terry Hughes sparked Skylarks at bat in their only win, connecting for three singles. Sandy Ferguson tripled and singled to drive in three runs while Lisa Atkinson also tripled and singled.

Halldorson Unchallenged

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dan Halldorson of Brandon bogeyed the first two holes Sunday but played par golf the rest of the way to win his second straight Manitoba Open golf championship.

Halldorson had a final-round 74 for a 54-hole total of 213, three-under-par. That left him two shots ahead of Winnipeg amateur Terry More, who shot a final-round 68, for a 215 score.

Another two shots back were first-round leader Greg Hetzer of California, Mike Zinni of St. Paul, Minn., and Craig Dearden of Winnipeg, aother amateur.

Hetzer trailed Halldorson by two shots after 36 holes but failed to mount any charge despite Halldorson's early problems. He finished with a two-over-par 76.

Only a couple of others, including Dearden, presented any type of challenge to Halldorson's lead throughout the day.

But Halldorson played steady golf through the final 16 holes and it was enough to give him the $3,000 top prize as the challengers ran into problems on the back nine.

More was the only one to maintain his sub-par play through the back nine, but he couldn't make up the eight-shot deficit he faced entering the final round.

Florida in December

SEATTLE — Bruce Shaw of Victoria should be nice and warm on December 16.

He won a trip to Tampa, Fla., for a race on that date by posting a victory in the 12th of 15 races forming the Schlitz Marathon Series here Sunday.

Shaw turned in a time of two hours, 31.52 seconds while winning the 26-mile, 385-yard test under gruelling 30 degree temperatures.

The top male and the top female runner in each of the races will compete in a final event at Tampa.

Alex Marshall of the Victoria Flying "Y" placed third in the masters (40-49) class and finished 62nd over-all.

Only about 200 of the 416 starters managed to finish the race.

MEXICO SQUARES SERIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mexico defeated Canada 2-1 Sunday to force a third game in their best-of-three women's field hockey playoff series.

Canada opened the series Saturday by downing the Mexicans 6-0.

Sue Jameson scored on a penalty stroke to give Canada a 1-0 halftime lead Sunday, but Mexico scored twice on second-half deflections.

Saturday, Sheila Forshaw, Sandy Drever and Diane Whittingham each scored twice as Canada tallied three times in each half.

Nelson Wins Two Titles

SURREY — Peggy Nelson of Esquimalt Athletics finished as the only double winner among the Victoria-area contingent in the British Columbia juvenile track and field championships at Bear Creek Park at the weekend.

Nelson turned in a time of 10 minutes, 30.0 seconds to win the 3,000 metres Sunday after posting a winning time of 4:47.2 in the 1,500 metres Saturday.

Bonnie Hutton of the Flying "Y" was runner-up in the 1,500 in 4:59.0 and placed third in the 800 Sunday.

Bateman toured the distance in four minutes, 23.1 seconds to set the new standard and managed a second-place finish in the 3,000-metre event Sunday with a 8:59.2 clocking.

Peter Skillings of Victoria Track Club won the 110-metre hurdles Saturday in 16.1 seconds and clubmate Sean Steele finished second in 16.8.

Other outstanding performances by area athletes include seconds by Laura Mahoney of Esquimalt in the 100 and 200 metres, a second by Mike Thorne of Duncan in the discus, a second by Leslie Grudison of VTC in the triple jump, a second by Shawn Costello of Flying "Y" in the 400-metre hurdles.

In the invitational junior portion of the program, Blair Boland of Victoria Mercuries won the 800 in 1:55.9 to edge clubmate Dave Campbell, who clocked 1:56.8. Tony Theriault of Esquimalt Athletics won the 400-metre hurdles in 58.2.

After Seven Games, Only One Team Out

One team has been eliminated but that's about the only decision reached after seven games were played at Central Park to determine the district's "B" and "C" representatives in the provincial men's softball finals.

Victoria Athletics and Sooke Merchants, battling for the "B" stall in the B.C. playdowns to be staged in Victoria later this month, are all square after two games in a best-of-three series. Athletics won Saturday's opener 2-0 but Sooke deadlocked matters with a 15-inning, 1-0 victory Sunday.

The marathon prevented Elks and Ingraham Hotel from settling the "C" playdowns, a double round-robin affair. Elks led 5-4 after five innings when darkness called a halt to the game. It will be picked up at that point later in the week, possibly Thursday or Friday.

Both Elks and Ingraham had 2-1, won-lost records while Batesons (1-3) have been eliminated.

All teams are from the Stuffy McGinnis League.

The third and deciding game will be played Wednesday at Central Park.

Taylor House Movers and Athletics split a Heywood Men's League doubleheader Sunday. Skip Standish drove in all three runs as Taylors clipped the A's 3-1 in the opener. Hank Klatt belted a three-run homer, Jim Walshaw hammered a three-run double and John Iverson drove in four, including three with a bases-clearing triple, as Athletics won the nightcap 15-3.

At Sanscha Park, Travelodge edged Brentwood 7-5 in the first game but lost the second 5-2 as Dale Lougheed and Dale Ewasiuk clouted back-to-back homers. In another game, Sidney Hotel nipped Hermsens 4-3 in eight innings.

IT'S A HANDY HOUSE ON LAKEHILL SQUAD

VANCOUVER — Mike House turned in a near-flawless performance on the mound Saturday while leading Lakehill of Victoria to a 2-0 shutout over Prince George in the British Columbia Little League baseball tournament.

The 12-year-old pitcher threw a no-hitter, walked only one batter and struck out 12 while going the distance.

He also doubled in the fifth inning and then scored what proved to be the winning run on another two-bagger by Jamie Porpaczy.

Porpaczy scored the insurance run after Paul Soares bunted and drew a wild throw.

Duncan, the other Vancouver Island team in the tourney, suffered a setback Sunday, losing 11-1 to Little Mountain of Vancouver.

Prince George and Duncan meet in a losers' bracket game tonight and Lakehill meets Little Mountain at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

In other Saturday games, Trail downed West Vancouver 7-3 and Whalley steamrollered Killarney, 22-1. On Sunday Killarney ousted West Vancouver 7-5 and Whalley tripped Trail, 9-4.

City Ruth Club Stays in Chase

HERMISTON, Ore. — Victoria's Senior Babe Ruth League all-stars are still in the hunt for Northwest regional baseball honors despite an opening-round loss.

Held to two hits, Victoria bowed 11-0 to a strong Seattle team in the regional tournament's opening game Saturday. The British Columbia champions bounced back, however, to eliminate Idaho Falls, Idaho, 9-1 Sunday.

Perry Walz started and took credit for the victory with a strong four-inning performance Sunday. Larry Wedgewood pitched one inning and Russ Mosher toiled the final two as the Victoria trio allowed only three hits.

Jay Tuson sparked an 11-hit Victoria attack with a two-run double.

Victoria faces Portland, also beaten once, tonight.

Host Hermiston edged Portland 4-3 while Libby, Mont., defeated Idaho Falls 6-3 in other first-round games Saturday. On Sunday, Hermiston dropped Lander, the Wyoming champion, into the losers' bracket by scoring an 8-1 victory.

Andretti Boosts Grand Prix Lead

HOCKENHEIM, West Germany (AP) — Mario Andretti appears almost certain to bring the European-dominated Formula 1 racing crown to the United States this year following his victory in the German Grand Prix auto race.

In recording his fifth victory of the season in Sunday's race, the 38-year-old Pennsylvanian, who finished the 45-lap race in one hour, 28 minutes and one second for an average speed of 129.25 miles an hour, pushed his point total to 54. Next at 36 is Lotus team-mate Ronnie Peterson of Sweden.

Austria's Niki Lauda, the defending world champion and last year's German Grand Prix winner, and Carlos Reutemann of Argentina, who like Peterson dropped out Sunday with mechanical troubles, trail with 31 points apiece with five more events to go in the 16-race schedule.

Finishing second in the race over the 4.2-mile Hockenheim Ring was Jody Scheckter of South Africa, who brought his Wolf Ford, owned by Montreal millionaire Walter Wolf, into contention after a dismal start that left him in last place after the first lap.

Jacques Lafitte of France placed third in his Ligier Matra and Emmerson Fittipaldi of Brazil was fourth in his Copersucar.

Didier Pironi of France was fifth in an Elf-Tyrrell. Hector Rebaque of Mexico, at 22 the youngest driver in the 24-car field, came in sixth. John Watson of Ireland was seventh in a Brabham and Gilles Villeneive of Berthierville, Que., placd eighth in his Ferrari.

Andretti started Sunday's race from the pole position next to Peterson. After the first lap, it was clear Andretti was going to live up to his billing as the favorite.

The black Lotuses of Peterson and Andretti sprinted well ahead of the third- and fourth-place cars—first with the Swede in the lead, then after three laps Andretti moving to the front.

But Peterson, who set two track records for the fastest single laps while chasing Andretti, was forced out of the race in the 38th lap with a bad gear box. That left Andretti the undisputed leader.

Villeneuve had both fuel pressure and tire troubles on his Ferrari. He was running as high as sixth, even after stopping to change all four tires, but then fell to eighth after his fuel pressure dropped.

"For the first five laps after the pit stop, the fuel pressure was low, but fair," said Villeneuve. "After that though, it was useless. I couldn't get the engine to rev up."

Pat 10 Under; Wins by Three

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — Pat Bradley shot a four-under-par 68 Sunday to capture the fifth annual Hoosier Classic Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, finishing three strokes ahead of runner-up JoAnne Carner.

Bradley, 27, ended the $60,000 tournament at the 6,225-yard, par-72 Plymouth Countr yClub course with a 10-under-par 206 for 54 holes.

Bradley's fourth tour victory was worth $9,000. The Westford, Mass., resident captured the Lady Keystone tournament last month, snapping Nancy Lopez's record streak of five consecutive victories in the process.

Hall-of-Famer Mickey Wright, who shot her second 69 of the tournament, finished third at 211.

Marlene Hagge, 44, who started the final round one stroke ahead of Bradley and Carner, shot herself out of contention with a double bogey on the 321-yard, par-four 17th hole after her tee shot was wide of the fairway. She finished with a bogey to end up tied for fourth with Kathy Whitworth at 212.

Dot Germain, who also shot a 68 in the final round, shared sixth place with Jan Stephenson at 214.

WHITECAPS CRUISE PAST STOMPERS

Cosmo Ace Sets Mark

GEORGIO CHINAGLIA
. . . 31st and 32nd goals

By Canadian Press

Establishing a North American Soccer League scoring record is old hat to New York's Giorgio Chinaglia.

Chinaglia scored his 31st and 32nd goals of the year Sunday to set a single-season record as the Cosmos defeated Tampa Bay Rowdies 2-1.

Chinaglia notched his record-breaking 31st goal on a penalty shot at 59 minutes, lifting the Cosmos into a 1-1 deadlock, and later fired the winning tally.

The previous high of 30 goals in a season was established in 1968 by John Kowalik of Chicago and Cirilo Fernandez of San Diego.

Chinaglia is no stranger to the NASL record book, though—his name being listed in six different offensive categories.

At Oakland, Vancouver Whitecaps charged into a 4-0 lead in the opening half and cruised to a 6-2 triumph over the Stompers, who were resting star goaltender Shep Messing.

A crowd of 6,421 saw first-half goals by Jon Sammels, John Craven, Steve Kember and Peter Daniel, all at the expense of Oakland's Gene DuChateau, who replaced Messing.

Vancouver's lead increased to 5-0 on a goal by Bobby Campbell at the 59:14 mark before the Stompers broke into the scoring column on a header by Andy McCullough, who wound up the scoring at 87:07, less than a minute after Campbell had counted his second goal for the Caps.

In other NASL action Sunday, Detroit Express dumped Fort Lauderdale Strikers 4-2, New England Tea Men stopped Tulsa Roughnecks 2-1, San Diego Sockers defeated Colorado Caribous 3-2 and California Surf bombed San Jose Earthquakes 5-0.

In Saturday's games, Toronto Metros-Croatia defeated Philadelphia Fury 2-1, Rochester Lancers blanked Washington Diplomats 1-0, Dallas Tornado shut out Houston Hurricane 4-0, Chicago Sting stopped Memphis Rogues 3-1 and Minnesota Kicks ripped Los Angeles Aztecs 4-0.

Bettors are Busy, Trevor John Zips

Track conditions at Sandown Park are getting better and better. So is betting action at the harness racing meet on the North Saanich oval.

There were 1,628 spectators at Sandown Saturday and they pushed a meet-record $117,591 though the mutuel machines, easily topping the previous high of $107,294 wagered on July 15 and producing the fifth over-$100,000 figure of the meeting.

They also watched some rapid pacing, particularly by Trevor John, a seven-year-old gelding that won the feature race in 2:01 2/5, the fastest time ever recorded in British Columbia for a one-mile pace.

Earning $900 for Saturday's effort, Trevor John boosted his 1978 earnings to $14,144 in 24 starts and regained the track record he shared after posting a 2:04 clocking in a July 22 victory.

That previous mark was doomed for extinction after heavy rain that accompanied last week's spectacular thunderstorm left the crushed-rock racing surface in firmer condition.

Valiant Dauber slashed a full second off the mark Friday and Trevor John performed an even slicker chopping job Saturday as he beat Steady Nick to the wire at a speed more than a second better than Cloverdale Raceway's track record of 2:02 3/5, set last March by Delta Duke.

Handled by Joe Rankin, Trevor John paid $6.10 to win as he outsped Steady Nick while Bethany Blaze was grabbing the third spot ahead of favored Hazels Yankee.

Seven of Saturday's 10 winners produced lifetime bests for the mile, including Dark Phantom, the 10th-race favorite who was almost two seconds under his previous fastest time as he paced the distance in 2:03 3/5 on the way to his fifth successive triumph for owner-trainer Jim Gilbert of Richmond.

Although betting favorites were around the front through most of the card, there were enough surprises to produce a couple of exactor payoffs above $100. Captain UCody N ($11.80 to win) and Kalamea Edie ($17.20 to place) combined for a $161.70 exactor in the fifth and Ardens Perry joined T.H. Brook in the seventh for a $125.50 return.

Rankin, also scoring with a Cal's Dominion in the first race, was one of three drivers to twice get home in front Saturday. Driving leader Keith Linton notched his 42nd and 43rd victories of the meeting with Mr. Ming and Dobbie Joe, and Mike Evans posted victories with Captain UCody N and Dark Phantom.

Racing at Sandown continues tonight with an eight-race program that starts at 5:45.

SHUTTLE SERVICE FOR THE INJURED

COLOGNE (Reuter) — At least 15 British and West German soccer fans were injured, some of them knifed, when fighting broke out Saturday during an exhibition game between Manchester United and FC Cologne.

Police said about 40 of the 500 Manchester fans watching the match were armed with knives and bicycle chains and were behaving aggressively on the terraces during the match, which ended in a 1-1 draw.

Ambulances ran a shuttle service to take the injured to hospital and one badly-wounded fan was reported to have been taken from the ground by helicopter.

Shortly before the match, three British fans were arrested on suspicion of theft and attacking a young German couple with beer bottles. The three were later released pending further investigations, police said.

Canadians Tripped

BOURGAS, Bulgaria (Reuter) — Hungary downed Canada 77-68 and the Soviet Union beat the United States 77-61 Sunday in the Diana Cup women's basketball tournament.

The Soviet and Hungarian teams played today in the final to decide first and second places while Canada and the United States battled for the third position.

Carnarvon Collects Pony League Title

NORTH DELTA — Carnarvon apparently likes to play things close.

Blair Littler scored the winning run in the bottom of the eighth inning as Carnarvon tripped Delta 5-4 in the final game of the British Columbia Pony League baseball championship tournament here Sunday.

Carnarvon bounced back to take the title after a 5-2 defeat at the hands of the same club earlier in the day left each team with one defeat in the double-loss-elimination tourney.

Six Carnarvon errors helped Delta force the deciding game, in which the host club was ahead 4-0 after scoring one run in the first inning and three in the second.

Clark Austin tagged a two-run homer in the fifth frame to make it 4-2 and Carnarvon scored two more in the sixth to tie things up.

Littler got on base in the eighth with a double, advanced to third on a groundout and raced home with the winning run on a passed ball with two out.

Paul Russell and reliever Trevor Strandlund, who took the win, combined to pitch a two-hitter for the victory.

Close decisions were nothing new in the tournament for the Carnarvon boys, who won earlier encounters 2-1 and 9-8.

Brian Campbell set the pace for the Saturday win with two home runs — a grand-slam effort in the fifth and a score tying (8-8) bases-empty blast in the bottom of the seventh with two away.

What! Darth Vader Masked an English Accent!

HOLLYWOOD — For more than a year now Dave Prowse has lived with the curse of anonymity despite the fact that he is the most popular star in the most successful movie ever made.

Prowse is a huge Englishman who stands 6-foot-6, weighs 260 pounds and has a chest measurement of 52 inches. He's a hard man to miss in a crowd.

As an actor he is pleased that people stare at him even if it's for the wrong reason. He would dearly love to be recognized for his role in Star Wars, the all-time box-office champion.

Prowse played Darth Vader, the evil military genius from Death Star who almost conquers the universe.

One would suppose Dave's face would be as familiar as Paul Newman's. But, alas, he played the entire role in an ominous black helmet, flowing black cape and a metallic mask.

Not once is Dave's face seen. Nor is his voice heard even fleetingly. So Dave is destined to spend the rest of his life identifying himself as good old Darth Vader and hoping people will believe him.

Prowse, who makes his home in London, came to the United States this summer to attend the Space 1999 Convention in Columbus, Ohio. Coincidentally, 20th Century-Fox re-released Star Wars to booming business and Dave has taken the opportunity to let people know the identity of the real Darth Vader.

"It's frustrating to be the biggest hit in the most popular movie of all time and not be recognized," Dave lamented on a brief stop in Hollywood.

He would have been mobbed, of course, had he worn his Darth Vader outfit. But Dave has only donned the menacing mask, cape and helmet twice since Star Wars was released more than a year ago:

"I wouldn't wear the costume if I did own it. It would destroy the illusion."

Dave's 15-year acting career was devoted primarily to monster movies made in England before Star Wars came along. He starred in Horror of Frankenstein, Vampire Circus and Frankenstein and the Monster From Hell.

He is a weightlifter and an authority on body-building. At 43, Dave is a personable blond man with a prominent nose and distinct English accent.

In 1975, when director George Lucas was casting Star Wars in London, he called Dave for an interview, impressed with the villainous role Dave had played in A Clockwork Orange.

"I chose Vader immediately, without even seeing the script. At the time I didn't know I'd be wearing a mask. And throughout the production I thought Vader's voice would be mine," Prowse said.

"But it became obvious that they couldn't have a creature from outer space speaking with an English accent. No matter how much they processed the voice, it would still sound British.

"Vader's voice was dubbed by James Earl Jones and was heavily processed. Naturally, I was disappointed. No actor likes to be dubbed. It's just an ego thing."

Dave's ego is somewhat assuaged by fame in England as the Green Cross Man. He appears almost nightly on English television in a Superman-like costume in 30-second spot announcements lecturing kiddies on street safety.

He is far better known for being the Green Cross Man, even in England, than he is as Darth Vader. But his role as Vader, despite his anonymity, has boosted his career.

Pinball Player Sets Record

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Flashing lights, tilts and ringing bells have been swirling around Edward Leyden's head for a week, and no one could blame him if he swore off silver balls and flippers for a long time.

The 17-year-old Hampden resident set the record Sunday for consecutive pinball-playing by going 170 hours.

LAKEFIELD, Ont.— Prince Andrew made a brief visit to his old school, Lakefield College, before leaving to spend the weekend at the Muskoka cottage of Col. Frank McEachren, who acted as the prince's local father while he was an exchange student at the school in 1977.

COPENHAGEN — Three leading Russian dissidents — Yuri Orlov, Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg — sentenced recently to labor camps have been proposed as joint candidates for the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize.

MOSCOW — New York Times reporter Craig Whitney returned to Moscow Sunday and said his conviction by a Soviet court for slander would not affect his work.

FRESNO, Calif. — One Siamese twin died Saturday about six hours after rare surgery to separate him from his brother at Valley Children's Hospital.

A hospital spokesman for the hospital, said the baby, identified only as Thomas, died of major brain damage suffered before surgery and from the trauma of the operation. The other twin Brian was reported in stable but very guarded condition.

OCEAN CITY, N.J. — Monaco's Princess Caroline and her husband of one month, Philippe Junot, relaxed at this seaside resort Sunday in what turned into a family reunion.

The couple, visiting the home of Caroline's maternal grandmother Margaret Kelly, were joined by the bride's mother Princess Grace and sister Stephanie, 13.

DOVER, England — Thirteen-year-old British schoolboy Carl Bennison on Sunday became the youngest person to swim the English channel.

OLYMPIA, Wash. — Marlyn Daniels wants the rock group Kiss to know about his son Curtis, 11, who suffered third-degree burns trying to imitate its fire-breathing stunt.

PITTSBURGH — Admiral Ben Moreell, founder of the Seabees, the United States Navy's famed construction battalions, died in hospital of cancer Sunday. He was 85.

COMPOSITE DRAWINGS RELEASED

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives select committee on assassinations released some photographs and composite drawings Sunday "in the hope that citizen recognition of them might shed additional light on the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr."

The material was released two weeks before the committee begins a series of public hearings to present evidence it has gathered in its 17-month investigation into the murder of Kennedy in 1963 and black civil rights leader King in 1968.

Quake Hits Italy

ROME (AP) — A series of small earthquakes shook a wide area of central Italy on Sunday, causing panic among the residents of several towns and slight damage to old buildings, but there were no reports of injuries.

MORE QUESTIONING

MOSCOW — U.S. businessman Francis Crawford returned to Lefortovo Prison today for more questioning about alleged currency violations but was to be freed again after the interrogation.

Crawford was accompanied by U.S. consular officer Robert Pringle and John Chellman, the chief Moscow representative of his employer, International Harvester. But they were not allowed to attend the interrogation.

Crawford told Western correspondents he didn't know how long the interrogation would last or what information would be sought. But since he is out of jail in exchange for the freedom of two Russians accused of spying in the United States, his release after questioning was certain.

Crawford, 38, of Mobile, Ala., was arrested June 12 and held at the prison two weeks, during which time he was interrogated daily.

"This is my first official visit back," he said today.

He was released June 27 to the custody of U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon.

Too Young To Donate Kidney?

LAKE PLACID, Fla. — Darryl Wirick wants to donate one of his kidneys to his ailing twin, Darren. His parents are willing but have asked the courts to decide whether a seven-year-old boy can legally make such a decision.

"Darryl is a minor, and we don't have the right to make this decision," said his mother, Diane Wirick, 34.

The Wiricks have filed a petition in Highlands County court, seeking a ruling indicating "that the court understands that he's aware of what he's doing."

Warships Massing for Big Sailpast

Victorians and a horde of tourists will be treated Tuesday to the biggest naval review and sailpast here since the Second World War.

Twenty-five warships representing seven nations began gathering at Royal Roads today.

The ships will be dressed over-all with all colors flying and illuminated with outline lighting tonight.

★ ★ ★

In addition to 14 ships of Canadian Maritime Forces, there are warships from Britain, the United States, France, New Zealand, Mexico and South Korea. Nearly 4,000 officers, men and cadets will take part in the review and sailpast, 1,900 of them Canadians.

The Captain Cook bicentennial spectacular begins just before 10:30 a.m. Tuesday with 21-gun salutes.

★ ★ ★

The review begins at 10:30 a.m. when Governor-General Jules Leger, aboard the reviewing ship CFAV Endeavour, sails between the rows of warships at the Royal Roads anchorage.

Spectators should be able to get a good view along the Esquimalt waterfront from Macaulay Point west or from Fort Rodd Hill Park and Lagoon Road on the Coburg Peninsula in Colwood.

Following the review the Endeavour will take up position at Clover Point off Dallas Road.

The sailpast begins at 1 p.m., all ships sailing from the formation at Royal Roads past Beacon Hill Park to Clover Point. On completion of the sailpast the ships will turn south, then west and return to their assigned berths in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt.

★ ★ ★

Beacon Hill Park, from Douglas Street through to Clover Point, will be a good vantage point.

A public address system will be set up and Lieut. Bruce Godbehear of the Canadian armed forces will give a commentary as the ships pass.

On Wednesday the warships will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. in the dockyard and on Thursday they will be open to special groups — such as the handicapped and senior citizens — at 9 a.m.

PACT REACHED WITH STORES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tentative agreement was reached Sunday between Victoria and Vancouver-area supermarket workers and the British Columbia Food Industry Labor Relations Council.

George Johnston, negotiator for the meatcutters' local of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union, one of three groups bargaining simultaneously for a new contract, said all three agreed to a contract and will recommend acceptance to their 8,500 members.

Details of the agreement, which was reached in a day-long meeting with mediator Ken Albertini, were withheld.

The meatcutters, Bakery and confectionary workers and retail clerks union all had taken strike votes.

No Lifeguard For Nudists

VANCOUVER (CP) — The parks board will not provide funding for a lifeguard at the city's Wreck Beach, which is frequented by nude bathers, acting board chairman Mary Ann Fowler said Sunday.

Fowler said, however, nudity is not the problem.

"If we felt that we should have a lifeguard there we'd ask city council for the money," she said. "But we don't want a lifeguard in a dangerous swimming area."

Fowler said the currents and tide off Wreck Beach are very dangerous and the presence of lifeguards would make the beach seem like a safe place to many people.

"We don't want to encourage people to swim there and we don't want to encourage parents to leave their children in the hands of lifeguards," she said.

Last week, following the drowning of a youth at the beach, a Vancouver lifeguard recruited several volunteers and spent $800 of his own money to set up a safety station on the beach.

Fowler said that while the issue of nudity hasn't been discussed by the board, "we can't pay for something that would be allowing public nudity."

"We can't condone breaking the law," she said.

UGANDA'S CREW TOGETHER AGAIN

More than 400 former crew members of the medium-sized cruiser HMCS Uganda, which later was renamed HMCS Quebec, are in Victoria for their biennial reunion.

The Uganda, Canada's first cruiser during the Second World War, was the only Canadian ship to serve on active duty against the Japanese.

She was commissioned at Charleston, Carolina, in October, 1944, and went to the scrap heap in 1960.

Following a wine and cheese party at the Esquimalt branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, the veterans attended a banquet and dance at the University of Victoria's Commons Building Saturday night.

On Sunday, led by a pipe band, they marched to a service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

They also visited the destroyers HMCS Mackenzie, HMCS Yukon and HMCS Saskatchewan.

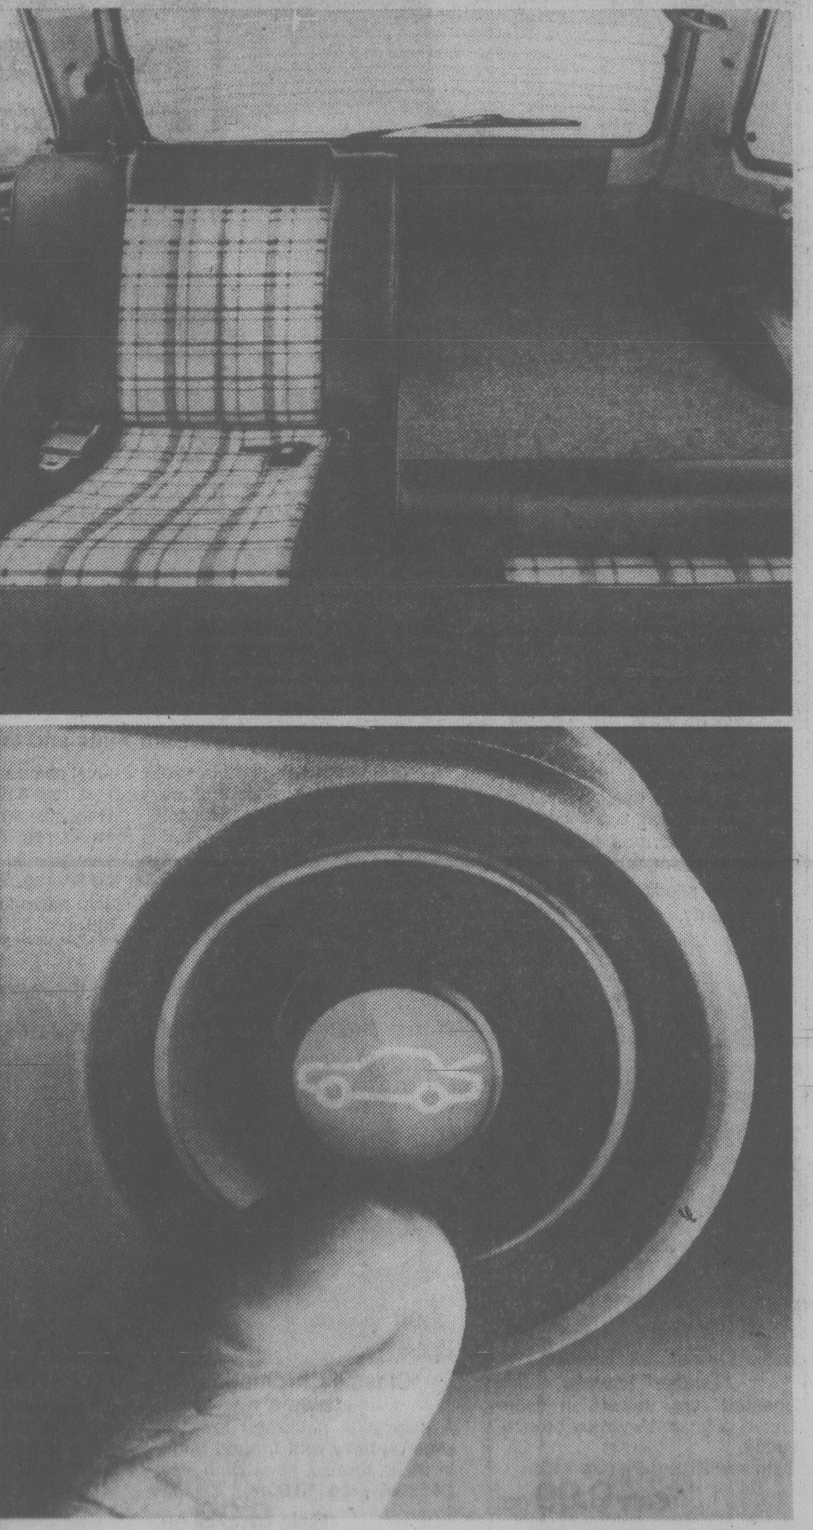
YOU GET STANDARD FEATURES ON A MAZDA GLC YOU CAN'T GET ON MOST SMALL CARS. EVEN AS OPTIONS.



There's no other hatchback at this price that has split rear seats. But, it's a standard feature on a GLC Deluxe. And it's a thoughtful idea.

You can fold the complete rear seat down for cargo space. Or fold either half. And leave an extra seat in the back for a third person.

The electric hatch release on a GLC Deluxe is another thing we're pushing because no other economy hatchback offers it. It works like this.

Suppose it's raining. You're in the car. Your husband has just come out of the supermarket with an armful of groceries. He dashes to the car and tries to open the hatch, but it's locked. He's getting soaked. And you don't want to. What do you do?

Well, if you were in a GLC, you'd push the electric hatch release. And bingo, the hatch would unlock. It's a nice thoughtful touch. In fact, there are a lot of other thoughtful features built into a GLC when you look at it.

Like a thoughtful 1300cc overhead cam piston engine that never forgets to give you great gas economy. Mileage of 78 km/gal. on the highway and 63 km/gal. in the city.*

For rust protection, there are many thoughtful rust protection features. Like galvanized front fenders with plastic inner fender liners, anti-corrosion primer inside the doors and plastic sealers in body joints.

Inside, the GLC probably has one of the most thoughtfully laid out interiors. The outstanding thing you'll notice is the excellent visibility. (People have told us the GLC makes them feel a lot safer, because they can see a lot more all around.)

Another thing is space. There's lots of it. In fact, the GLC gives you more shoulder room than a Honda Civic, VW Rabbit and Chevette. And instead of giving you a long list of options, the GLC Deluxe gives you a long list of standard features you'll find hard to believe.

There's a rear window washer and wiper. Electric rear window defogger. Tinted glass on all windows. Locking gas cover. Trip odometer. Day/night interior mirror. Walk-in device in the front seat. Wall-to-wall cut-pile carpeting in both passenger compartment and cargo area. Fully reclining front bucket seats. Power assisted front disc brakes. Protective body side moulding. Rubber impact strips on front and rear bumpers. And finally big 13" whitewall tires. All standard.

Of course, with so many standards on the GLC Deluxe you may be wondering whether there are any factory options.

There are. Just two. Metallic paint. And three-speed automatic transmission. Which brings us to ask: What option do you have left, other than to come and shop one of the best equipped and lowest priced economy cars on the market today? Available in 2 or 4 door models and a 5-speed Sport.

MAZDA GLC

HEART ATTACK FATAL ON ROYAL MOTORCADE

SASKATOON (FP) — The Queen's motorcade was approaching a Canadian Forces 707 jet Sunday afternoon at CFB Moose Jaw at about 10 kilometres an hour when the lead car, a military police cruiser, speeded up slightly.

The vehicle swerved, then hit a pole.

At the driver's feet was Master Warrant Officer Norman Elbridge O'Donnell, dead of an apparent heart attack.

"The Queen could not have missed seeing the accident," said a Buckingham Palace official who briefed reporters Sunday night after a royal party had arrived here.

The Queen was accompanied by Prince Philip and Prince Edward, 14, when the man was stricken.

The motorcade did not stop.

"As it was unknown what the accident was, the departure program was carried out," said the palace official.

O'Donnell, a native of Frederick, N.B., was in charge of the military police section at the base, a major aviation installation.

TORY MP ATTACKS REPORT

Conservative MP John Fraser (Vancouver South) today sharply criticized a special committee of the Canadian Bar Association which is reportedly about to recommend the Queen no longer be Canada's head of state.

In a weekend report from Montreal the Globe and Mail said the committee, preparing a report on what should be included in Canada's new constitution, recommends the Queen be given the status of head of the Commonwealth, while Canada's head of state be a Canadian who might be called something other than Governor-General.

Fraser said in an interview from Ottawa that if the newspaper report is true "then the Canadian Bar Association hasn't got the political sense of a newt . . . the suggestion that we abolish the monarchy can only be gravely divisive . . . it is politically dumb to suggest such a thing."

Fraser said that "I don't believe there are very many thoughtful Canadians who believe that abolishing the monarchy will stop those who are trying to break up Canada. Such a suggestion can only infuriate millions of Canadians . . . If someone wanted to drive a wedge between English Canadians they couldn't have found a more perfect issue."

Fraser added that Jacques Vieu, president of the Canadian Bar Association, had indicated in a letter to Victoria lawyer John Goult, March 7, that the question of the Queen's role was not being considered by the special committee.

Goult had written to Vieu expressing concern about comments Vieu had reportedly made earlier this year concerning the role of the Queen in Canada.

In an interview today Goult said Vieu had written back denying press reports that quoted him as saying the special committee would advocate dropping the Queen.

The Canadian Bar Association's annual convention will be held in Halifax in August.

church service, where Philip read the lesson.

Almost every pew was filled in the 505-seat church and one regular church-goer was annoyed that he was unable to sit in his regular pew.

When members of the Royal family arrived, they went directly into the church, much to the dismay of one woman in the crowd outside: "All that waiting for two minutes and she didn't even turn around."

However, the crowd did get an unexpected royal view when a sudden gust of wind sent the Queen's skirt flying giving the crowd a sight of the regal petticoats.

Today, the Royal couple makes appearances in Saskatoon and in Lloydminster before flying on to Edmonton tonight to start a six-day Alberta visit. On Thursday Her Majesty will open the Commonwealth Games.

The reaction of Saskatchewan citizens to the royal visit has been restrained. Crowds have been smaller than organizers of the tour expected and one RCMP constable noted: "A lot fewer people are turning out than when the Queen came to Saskatchewan in 1973."

The Queen, Philip and Edward will land tonight at CFB Namao, just north of Edmonton.

Her first appearance Tuesday outside Edmonton, in Grande Prairie, is surrounded by controversy. The fact that the provincial government plans do not allow for Mayor Al Romanchuck to greet the Queen officially on her arrival at the town's airport has created a small uproar in the city.

Various petitions objecting to the arrangements have been circulated, but the plans remain unchanged. Instead, the mayor will meet the Queen at Grande Prairie hospital, where she is to unveil a plaque commemorating the pioneers' original log hospital and turn the first sod for a new hospital.

Before the Queen officially opens the Commonwealth Games Thursday, thousands of Edmonton residents and visitors will have a chance to see — and perhaps meet — her when she takes one of her famous walkabouts in downtown Sir Winston Churchill Square.

Tender Trap Isn't

SYDNEY (UPI) — Efforts by an Australian research group to develop the ultimate mousetrap — one baited by sex and sprung genetically — have run into a dead end.

The trouble is that female mice are a bit too liberal with their favors.

An experiment to see if the mouse population could be controlled by "seeding" groups with a gene for male sterility was conducted by Drs. Pamela Pennycuik and Neville Westwood.

The sterility gene, however, disappeared completely from the enclosed mouse population instead of spreading.

"From observation, female mice may mate four or five times with different males, so even if a sterile male did manage to mate first with a given female, his efforts would be undone by other males," Miss Pennycuik said.

Sub Snatches Fishermen

ROME (AP) — The crew of a Libyan submarine that surfaced near an Italian fishing boat in the Mediterranean forced two fishermen off their craft at gunpoint, then submerged and took the pair back to Libya to face charges of violating territorial waters, the Italian foreign ministry said Sunday.

The foreign ministry said the two, Bartolomeo Ingargiola, 40, and his cousin Matteo Ingargiola, 25, are in good condition and Italian consular officials in Tripoli, Libya's capital, are discussing with Libyan authorities the allegation that the boat entered Libyan waters illegally.

Gaspare Asaro, skipper of the Sicilian fishing boat Eschilo, said the submarine surfaced 32 kilometres north of the Libyan coast, stopped the boat, pointed a machine gun at the vessel and ordered the two fishermen on board.

Port officials in Sicily quoted Asaro as saying the two fishermen volunteered to board the submarine so that the captain and other nine fishermen could go free.

There have been a number of incidents in recent years involving Sicilian boats fishing in waters claimed by Libya and Tunisia to be within their territorial limits.

Jane's Fighting Ships, the authoritative British reference journal, says Libya bought a submarine from the Soviet Union in 1976 and reportedly has five more on order. Jane's also says the Libyans have ordered four submarines from France, with delivery due in 1980 or 1981.

Mounties: They're Better than Ever, Except for French Quotas: Retiring Chief

PETER BAZOWSKI
35 years on the force

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The federal government's bilingualism program has spawned a subtle form of discrimination that is discouraging many persons from entering government service, says the head of the RCMP in B.C.

Deputy commissioner Peter Bazowski says the program, as it affects hiring and promotion within the service, is a total failure.

He says government departments, including the RCMP, are being forced to hire French-speaking Canadians in proportion to the French Canadian representation in the population, without always regard to merit or ability.

Although the government would never acknowledge there is a quota system, he says, quotas do exist, if only by tacit agreement.

Bazowski, who retires from the force Wednesday, made the comments in a interview.

The number two man in the RCMP hierarchy in Canada, Bazowski says he's never disagreed with the concept of bilingualism, only with the way it's been politicized.

"It's been rammed down people's throats instead of letting it take its natural course,"

"If the government wants to achieve bilingualism it should be providing facilities to teach kids French and English, rather than trying to convert old-time government employees."

He says when he joined the force after the Second World War racial discrimination was widespread.

"Having a name like mine was a distinct disadvantage," says Bazowski, whose parents came to Canada from the Ukraine in the early part of the century.

"There was a belief at the time that the only thing Ukrainians were good for were as hewers of wood and drawers of water."

That he managed to rise to the top despite everything indicates to him that that type of thinking has been eliminated.

But in its place another kind of discrimination has loomed — bilingualism.

"It's disappointing," he says. "I would like to be able to live in a society where it doesn't matter what a person's ethnic background is."

The disappointment is the only one he has after 35 years on the force.

In other respects he is pleased with the developments over the years and believes that, despite the adverse publicity generated by the MacDonald inquiry, the RCMP is as strong as ever.

"I feel we have the confidence of the public at the level it counts — the grass roots," he says.

Bazowski notes with pride several accomplishments since coming here in May, 1976, to head the region, the largest in the country.

He reorganized the force into two large divisions and brought about several lesser changes, such as the formation of a sub-division serving the northern half of the Island.

The decentralized approach, which went into effect a year ago, is working so well there's no turning back, he says. The paper flow to Victoria has been reduced, the efficiency increased, and staff morale heightened.

During his tenure the force's manpower has grown 684 positions to 4,064 with 64 more who work at the crime lab in Vancouver; a new headquarters has been built in Victoria and larger buildings acquired in Vancouver; and the transportation facilities have been modernized with a greater emphasis on air services, not surprising since Bazowski was in charge of the air service branch in Ottawa before being posted here.

In addition there's been a steady improvement in the clearance rate — the measuring stick of a policeman's performance which shows how many crimes are solved or cleared by charge compared to the total number of crimes reported.

In 1975, it was 39 per cent in B.C., the lowest of any region in Canada. Last year it had risen to 43.4 per cent.

The ratio of manpower to workload has also improved. Three years ago B.C. had 28 per cent of the national strength with 48 per cent of the total workload. Last year the figures were about 30 and 46 per cent respectively. In nearly every other region the ratio of caseload burden to manpower is roughly equal.

Bazowski has been strong on highway safety programs and helped spearhead the provincial Counter-Attack program which has brought about a marked decline in fatalities and injury accidents over the past year.

A determined business-minded pragmatist, he's aimed for maximum efficiency with the least possible cost.

He doesn't believe, for instance, that the answer to crime problems is to hire more policemen. The current strength, he feels, is adequate. Other solutions, such as the provincial complusory heroin treatment program, should be tried and tested first.

He's encouraged the expansion of the volunteer auxiliary police, which now numbers close to 1,400, and urged detachments to hire secretarial staff to relieve officers of routine office work.

Bazowski has also been a staunch supporter of the special native constable program which, coupled with intensified in-service cultural training for regular officers, has helped bring about a better understanding between Indians and Mounties. He'd like to see the number of special native constables increased from the present 23.

Bazowski, who will turn 55 this year, leaves confident the force is in good hands.

"I think we're producing as good or better policemen than we've ever produced before."

The comment is not simply a head-office plug for the man on the beat based on annual reports. Over the past 2½ years he's managed to visit every detachment in the province — 135 in all, an accomplishment few if any commanding officers before him could match.

In retirement he and his wife, Phyllis, will move to a home on Salt Spring Island.

He doesn't relish the thought of leaving, but 35 years is maximum for any member of the force.

"I feel I've just whetted my appetite in this job," he says. "I would love to have stayed on a couple more years."

Lightning Rod Market?

Lightning rod pedlars long ago were a rural commonplace, their stock in trade to be seen on top of barns and silos all over the Prairie West.

But to judge by recent electrical storms, Victoria could revive the once flourishing market for lightning conductors.

Given the fierce electrical storms of the past three years, householders with external TV, AM, FM and CB radio antennas are vulnerable to lightning strikes.

A rash of service calls to electronic repair men follows storms such as the thundering spectacle Wednesday, usually because the lightning strikes cause an electrical surge which trips circuit breakers or blows line fuses in radio and TV sets.

One service man said the result is similar to a line surge in hydro supply, an effect often caused when power that has been out is suddenly restored.

In modern electronic equipment the only adjustment usually required is to reset the circuit breaker at the rear of the set, or to replace a blown fuse.

But with older sets, or perhaps where a direct hit is scored by lightning, there can be damage to transformers or other components.

Prairie people, used to summer lightning, install aresters on their radio antennas, giving the static electricity a direct and harmless path to earth.

CAUSEWAY CLEANER Chantal Morissette, armed with broom, dust pan and garbage bags, is ready to attack the litter on the Causeway. Owners of kiosks decided Friday to hire two high school students as cleaners after merchants and tourist officials laid the litter problem at their doorstep.

Police Arrest Abusive Mob

Boisterous, beer-drinking youths who made Highland residents run a gauntlet of spittle, curses and abuse met their match on the weekend when roadblocks were set up on Durrance Road.

Sidney RCMP said 22 charges were laid — mostly for liquor offences — when 150 persons were stopped in BATmobile checks Friday and Saturday nights.

The move followed complaints Thursday night by residents of secluded Willis Point and the sparsely-settled adjacent area who had to pass through a narrow section of the road near Durrance Lake where cars were parked on both sides and a large group of young people were congregated for a party.

They told police they were verbally assaulted, their windshields spat on and doors and tires kicked as they drove slowly between the roisterers.

An elderly couple's new car had a door kicked in; another car sustained similar damage with total repair costs estimated at $210. Another driver said there was so much spittle on his windshield he had to use his wipers.

Police said 40-50 persons aged 16-25 took part in the disturbance, and a 13-year-old was placed in the custody of his mother.

One person was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile, most of the other 21 with possession of liquor.

VANDAL PATROLS SOUGHT

Saanich police board has been asked by council's bylaw enforcement committee to step up police surveillance to combat the problem of increasing vandalism in residential neighborhoods.

The request follows recurring complaints from several so-called problem areas, the most recent being a petition by residents who live in the vicinity of Rudd Park, in the Burnside district.

Twenty-six residents of Irma, Whittier, Harriet and other roads near the small park complained of chronic vandalism as well as excessive noise created by unruly young people.

Windows have been broken, gardens uprooted and street signs smashed, they said.

Sgt. Fred Wooster of the Saanich police department's community services division, told the committee that in response to the complaints, Rudd Park has been regularly patrolled.

He also said an officer has called on residents to explain the department's Stop Vandalism program and ask them to co-operate in watching the park and reporting suspicious activities.

$14,500 PAYOFF GIVEN WILKES

Former Saanich personnel director Arthur Wilkes, who was given a resign-or-be-fired ultimatum by council recently, will receive a $14,500 settlement.

Mayor Mel Couvelier says an "amicable" agreement to that effect was worked out last week between municipal staff and Wilkes' lawyer.

The settlement is based on three months' salary, out-of-pocket expenses and fringe benefits.

The role of the personnel department is being reassessed and Couvelier says a report should be ready for council in about one month.

City Grinding Away on Road

City streets are having the old asphalt ground off in preparation for resurfacing, city engineer John Sansom said today.

Sansom said the city's using a new technique this summer that's saving a considerable amount of money in public works.

The new method uses a rotor machine that grinds down the old road surface rather than breaking it up and removing it completely, or simply just laying down new asphalt over the old.

Sansom said the grinding system is better not only because it's economical, but because it allows streets to remain open while work is going on and doesn't necessitate the rebuilding of curbs.

"In the old days we would just keep resurfacing until we had no curbs left, and it was costly replacing them," said Sansom.

Fire Laid To Embers

Hot embers or careless smoking were blamed Sunday for a fire that burned the porch off a home at 914 Queens, causing an estimated $6,000 damage.

City firemen were called at 2:45 p.m. to the home of Elaine Dick, tenant of property owner Barry Casson, 895 Walfred.

Saturday afternoon firemen were called to McDonalds, Pandora, where an engine backfire caused $350 damage to a car owned by Raymond R. Ross, Work Point Barracks.

Fire Fighters Winning At Nanoose

A 1,500-acre forest fire burning west of Nanoose Bay is "more or less under control," according to MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

With the fire hazard equal to the summer of 1958 — a disastrous year in B.C. forests — there was no relief in sight today as the sixth week of hot, dry weather opened over most of the province.

About 250 men are engaged in the fire in difficult terrain in MB's Northwest Bay logging division about two miles northeast of Labor Day Lake around the 2,500-foot level near Moriarity Creek. They are assisted by bulldozers and 11 ground tankers, a DC-6 air tanker and two helicopters with 90-gallon deluge buckets. A third helicopter with a 360-gallon bucket was en route to the fire today from Prince George district.

Two shifts and an overnight maintenance crew are on the fire lines in extremely steep, rough ground over which access is limited and it is difficult to get firefighters to the scene, MB spokesman Tom Williams said.

Walt Shultz, assistant ranger, said the fire 20 kilometres southwest of Parksville did not grow during the weekend, but was not yet under control.

About 600 acres of the burned forest is in mature timber, 250 acres in new slash, 400 acres in young plantation trees, and 250 acres of alpine scrub. There is little road access.

Williams said there is concern for wind and weather which could drastically alter the situation.

"We could really have a problem; it's really dangerous and it could get away."

The fire started with a lightning strike last Wednesday and besides the trees destroyed, MB has lost a steel spar and loader valued at $750,000.

The forest service said B.C. still has not had the potential of fires this year considering the hot, dry weather since June.

High pressure areas cover most of the province with the exception of the northwest where some moisture is expected from the Pacific. The most serious district is Prince George, where there is no relief in sight for fires that are mainly in lower quality timber.

BCFS said the majority of fires in Vancouver forest district are looking good, but hot, dry weather pushed the fire hazard in the district to a 20-year high.

Meanwhile some forest service officials say workers in the industry may not be experienced enough to handle all the fires expected this summer.

"In this machine age the woodspeople are pullers of levers and pushers of buttons," said protection officer Bill Smith, of the Vancouver district.

"There's only a few people who are actually on the ground any more and know about the woods," he said, due to mechanization and more modern logging methods of the past two decades, resulting in fewer men feeling comfortable in the woods.

"But maybe our biggest problem is that we haven't had a bad fire season since 1958," said duty officer Ken Petersen, of the Vancouver district.

Hank Doerksen, of the forest service, said people get out of practice when there are extended periods without fires, but the government has trained an elite force in the industry familiar with supression techniques.

Daily air patrols across the province had also helped to detect fires earlier and make it possible to stop them sooner, he said.

A total of 228 fires were burning in British Columbia by the end of last week. There have been 1,086 fires to date this year, compared with 1,005 during the corresponding 1977 period.

With a Side-Order of Fish and Chips

WHEN WE GO DOWN TO Victoria, we keep an eye out for familiar landmarks. On our last trip, we were pleased to find that one of these is not only going strong, but that it has improved its rating considerably. This is Jerry Gosley's Smile Show, a durable knockabout version of British music hall fun and games, which now plays to resident and tourist audiences in the rarefied atmosphere of the Empress Hotel.

When we last happened on the Gosley compendium of skits and dances, low humor and sentimental songs, it had been denied the use of the McPherson Theatre and was struggling determinedly along in a high school auditorium. That was at least a dozen years ago.

So it was like bumping unexpectedly into an old friend to come on a larger-than life Beefeater in effigy with a ticket booth beside it in a backwater of the teeming Empress lobby. We bought tickets, then went off to wander among the shirt-tail tourists of summer until showtime.

The Crystal Ballroom, we found when we went in to our seats, had been set up in cabaret style with a multitude of little tables. On the tables were salt and pepper pots, also a notice which offered fish-and-chips at intermission for $2.35.

The idea of munching fish and chips in the Crystal Ballroom rather startled me. For us, that dignified retreat with its marvellous, many-faceted light fixtures dangling from its lofty ceiling held quite another set of memories.

We used to go to dances there ... mannered affairs with decorous music at which voices were never raised above a murmur. I fondly remember a yearly Christmas do to which parents brought their children. Our small daughter and I danced together there, she with face grave under a frivolous party hat while she did her best to guide my stumbling footsteps.

The ballroom filled. A busy platoon of girls circulated among the tables, taking orders for drinks. I ordered Harvey Wallbangers for my love and myself, and paid an atrocious $5 for the pair.

(So be it! When one descends on Victoria at the height of tourist season, one confidently expects to pay through the nose for that hokey British atmosphere.)

Word got around that the lieutenant-governor was to take in the show. Presently, to 'God Save the Queen," the vice-regal party entered and settled at their table. The Gosley extravaganza took off with a whoop and a holler.

I expected to find that age had left its mark on Jerry Gosley. But that amazing man, when he burst upon the stage in his "pearly" suit, looked scarce a day older than when I'd last watched him perform. He flung himself into his London music hall turns with effervescent vigor.

In pattern and content, I found that the Smile Show has changed little through the years. Jerry remains the star, but he cleverly exploits the capabilities of a young, bright, and very appealing company.

I was glad also to note that the Smile Show has successfully resisted any intrusion by culture through the years. It remains nicely and precisely what it has always been: fast-paced, vulgar, amiably cheeky, and possessed over-all of a curious kind of magic.

Perhaps it's a piece of illusion-peddling, in that it serves up a Britain which exists only in the Gosley memory and imagination. But the tourists loved it.

Intermission time arrived. We trooped out to the lobby to join a lineup for fish and chips, served from a portable kitchen.

Again, another gesture to illusion. Victoria really isn't a "bit of Old England." In actual fact, it's a very lovely city of Canada's farthest west, and if there are echoes, they are less of England than of San Francisco in its happier years. Still, it's fun to eat fish and chips, streets-of-London style, from a twist of newspaper.

While we nibbled, the show swung with unabated vigor into its second half and so to its conclusion.

It occurred to me as we strolled back through the warm evening to our own American-style motel that the Smile Show couldn't possibly have happened anywhere else except in Victoria. I suggest too that in the stately, stuffy, old Empress, it has finally come to its proper home.

Seventh Ave.: Big Changes On the Way

Geoffrey Beene fits evening outfit of hammered satin and navy blue jacket

By BERNADINE MORRIS

This time it is not the length of hemlines or the pants-versus-skirt question that are exercising designers.

For the first time in years it is the shape of clothes themselves that is under revision.

Designers have by now finished with fall and are concerned with their next collection, usually described as "holiday and resort". It involves clothes that will be shipped to the stores from October to December.

Holiday refers generally to the more festive kind of clothes women will be wearing to parties from Thanksgiving through New Year's Eve. Resort centres on warm-weather clothes for women who head south for winter vacations.

But these kinds of distinctions are becoming increasingly arbitrary.

"People dress non-seasonally today," said Oscar de la Renta. "You get bundled up when it's cold, you wear as little as possible when it's warm. The same silk blouse is worn with a wool skirt in the winter and a cotton one in the summer."

This year, it provides an opportunity to develop the new shape of clothes — broader at the top and tapering to the base.

"A year ago, I designed some slim dresses for the first time in years and women loved them," said Calvin Klein. "In the fall collection, I put some shoulder pads in them, and they acquired a much more dramatic shape."

It is, of course, not enough to slap some shoulder pads in clothes. "Clothes still have to be soft and unconstructed," Klein insisted. "The pads help, but they're not the whole story."

For some, the challenge is to broaden the top of the silhouette without resorting to shoulder pads.

"I refuse to get into shoulder pads," said Geoffrey Beene.

"There are ways of getting the effect without sticking things into clothes that hinder movement and are uncomfortable."

He nevertheless feels that clothes will be "cleaner, sharper and neater." There will also be more slimness, probably in suits.

"I'm most concerned with preserving movement in clothes," he said. "I can't believe women who have been liberating themselves in other areas will go back to tight, restrictive clothes. Liberation extends to fashion, too."

One way Bill Atkinson achieves a broader top is by inserting self-fabric ruffles inside his sleeves at the point where they join the shoulders. He calls the unseen ruffles "the American shoulder pad," referring to the gargantuan football-shoulder effects that were shown in many European collections for fall.

Still, Atkinson is not adverse to using shoulder pads when he deems them necessary. He tucks a soft, modest one into the top of some of his longish jackets, "just enough to set the shoulder," he said.

Nobody is particularly concerned about hemlines at this point.

"You'll probably find more variation in the length of pants than you will in skirts," predicted Donna Karan of Anne Klein. Skirts she prefers on the longish side — midcalf or below. "I really never liked really short skirts," Mrs. Karan explained.

Pants are different. She's experimenting with styles that have raw edges so they can be rolled up to any length the wearer prefers.

De la Renta's dresses, on the other hand, are much shorter, just about covering the knee. That's the length that balances the broad-shouldered, belted dresses he's working on now.

"Lengths aren't important any more," he said. "It's what looks best on you that counts."

Geoffrey Beene, however, feels that lengths are important — when it comes to evening dresses.

"Floor lengths are archaic," he said. "They just don't go with modern life."

"If you have to go to a ball, you can wear them anyway," he said.

Bill Haire likened the new silhouette that he and other designers are playing around with to a "Y" shape, which expresses the broadness of the shoulders and the slimness of the skirt.

"I don't think you can do anything with fuller skirts now," he said, "except maybe use pleats, which hang straight."

With these narrowed skirts, he likes to place jackets cropped above the waist or long, straight ones.

"It's not necessary to zero in on any one style," said Morty Sussman, the designer for Mollie Parnis Boutique. "Clothes are still going to be simple, uncluttered and unstructured, and there will be plenty of variety for everybody."

Bill Blass went even further:

"I like clothes that fit through the hips and have a little extension on top.

"But that's not the important thing. The clothes have to be pretty, flattering and, yes, sexy."

Granola Bars Rapped

TORONTO (CP) — A nutritionist and a dentist say granola bars, advertised as natural and wholesome, contain too much sugar to be considered a healthy snack on a regular basis.

The bars, a combination of oats, sugar, oil and nuts, have sugar as their second largest ingredient.

Dr. Kenneth Ryan, a dental consultant for the Ontario ministry of health, said the bars are nutritionally acceptable, but he would not offer them as a snack unless children brushed their teeth after eating them.

He said he would prefer to see them eaten with meals because of the high sugar content.

"As an alternative to a chocolate bar, they are certainly better," said Mara Vaughan, a nutritionist with Toronto's health department.

She said chocolate bars have about 400 calories, compared with 100 in granola bars.

She argued, however, they are not particularly nutritious and should not be offered as a treat on a regular basis.

Meanwhile, John Herrick, chairman of the board of General Mills Canada Ltd., which makes a brand of granola bars, said people need sugar for energy.

"If you took the sugar out of everything, life would be very dull," he said.

Note to Joggers: No Need to Shout

Miss Manners

By JUDITH MARTIN
The Washington Post

When ladies and gentlemen were in the habit of taking afternoon strolls, they did not bump into one another and shout rude remarks to warn others to get out of the way. Miss Manners realizes the world has sped up considerably in the last few years, but expects people to maintain this civility even though they are now jogging.

Miss Manners does not herself jog. She would not know how to manage her parasol while jogging in the summer, nor her muff in winter. She is willing to allow the right of others to jog themselves silly, but only if they, in turn, respect the rights of those who choose other methods of mobility.

Recreational and utilitarian transportation in cities include the automobile, the motorcycle, the horse, the bicycle, the jogging foot and the walking foot. While there are specialized areas for these pursuits, such as streets, sidewalks, horse paths and bicycle paths, many of these places must be shared, and none of them belongs exclusively to the jogger.

Two traffic rules should prevail. First, that the slower mover keep to the right and the faster pass on the left, and second, that the stronger should yield to the weaker.

For example, a jogger pulls over to the right to let a bicyclist pass on the left. An automobile yields to a pedestrian, but so does a jogger, who should be stronger than the walker or else the jogger has poured out an awful lot of sweat for nothing.

An exception is when the stronger method of transportation is likely to go out of control if startled. Miss Manners would not advise joggers to scare the horses on the horsepaths. Even though joggers are weaker than horses, they tend to be brighter.

Nor is there a reason for joggers to do their jogging in places likely to frighten people. It's a poor idea to choose crowded streets for jogging, and if one does so, one must remember to yield to pedestrians. Joggers who do not wish to break their activity must jog in place until pedestrians have been allowed to pass.

If there should still be conflicts, the correct warning is, in a normal tone of voice, "Excuse me, please." Not "GET OUT OF MY WAY!"

The correct clothing for a jogger is a sports costume that clearly looks like a sports costume. No city can keep its self-respect if its streets are filled with citizens who appear to be running around in their underwear.

And the correct thing to do with this clothing is to jog it out of sight, putting it and oneself in the wash immediately after jogging. Nobody loves a stationary jogger.

Miss Manners Responds

Q: I have heard that it is wrong to say "Congratulations" to a bride — that you can say it to the bridegroom, but are supposed to say "Best wishes" to the bride. Why is that?

A: Because of inequality in the marriage laws.

Q: I work in a small, rather close-knit office. We rarely see our boss, since he has retired to enjoy the profits which we work to produce. Four times a year, we receive a bonus out of the company profits. The others see this as a gift and send thank you notes to the boss. I feel we are entitled to these bonuses and that they only serve to cut the profit margin anyway. I have not sent any thank you notes. (I wonder if he even reads the others?) Am I wrong?

Q: Where should I put my purse in a restaurant?

Lines, Colors Affect Shape

By PAULINE GRAVES

Lines and colors affect room shapes as dramatically as lines and colors in clothing affects a woman's appearance. And the same basics hold true in both situations in that strong verticals make a room or a woman look taller, and horizontals reduce height. Appearances can be manipulated.

As an example, we show a handsome bedroom, by interior designer Marvyn Barnett. The furniture, styled after the art deco period in the thirties, looks low because contrasting colors and materials accent the furniture outlines, and no vertical lines conflict.

There is no conflict in the backgrounds either. Stripes in various colors and widths travel horizontally along the walls, two dark stripes as attention-getters, the others muted. Even the bedspread conforms, with light stripes edging the dark fabric, and the straight quilting echoes the straight horizontal stripes. Consequently, the entire room has a low, long look which makes for a feeling of warmth and intimacy.

The few lines that logically would be vertical, such as in the headboard and the bedside lamps, are practically invisible, made of clear Lucite. Not only do these tie into the scheme because of their see-through quality, but also their styles are representative of the same era as the furniture styles. The room is a beautiful assembling of compatible designs which complement each other.

Turns Snails to Escargots

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — A 30-year-old Frenchman has converted an old butcher shop and slaughterhouse into what he calls the U.S.'s only escargot factory.

"The only difference between the common garden snail and escargots is a lot of work," said Francois Picart, who is offering 25 cents a pound for all the garden snails he can get. He only requires that they are picked up, rather than stomped or poisoned into submission.

Picart said the common brown snails are actually Helix Aspersa, one of the snails the French prize most for tasty delicacies.

Helix Aspersa was brought to California 150 years ago for food purposes, Picart said, but some escaped, multiplying rapidly over the years in California's gentle climate. Now, the brown snail is termed a persistent pest by the public — but not by Picart.

"California is a snail paradise," he said, "and I can produce better escargots here than they do in France." In fact, Picart said the French taste for snails has outstripped its resources, and 40,000 tons are imported yearly from Turkey, Yugoslavia and Romania.

Picart helped run his family's inn on the outskirts of Paris until two years ago, when a friend told him he had eaten fresh escargots in Michigan. When he arrived in Michigan, Picart found relatively few snails, but on a visit to California he found the abundance of snails he desired.

At the Santa Rosa factory, the snails are kept in pens, much the same as a cattle feed lot, where they feast on fresh cabbages, wheat bran and corn meal. When they reach the proper size, they are purged with a water-only diet for 24 hours.

The snails are then cooked for three to five minutes, carefully removed from the shells, washed again and cooked again in herbs and butter. After packaging, the escargot are frozen and sold to restaurants and food shops, six for $4.50 in a ceramic dish, with repeat servings for $2.50 to $2.75.

If things go well, Picart said he hopes to eventually top the escargot market in his homeland.

Bio-dex

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

|---|---|
| 0-5 Negative Cycle- | You'll become sick if you push yourself too hard. Spread your work out a little more. |
| 6-10 Neutral Cycle- | Life doesn't get easier when you hide from it. When you've rested, get right back in and work it out. |
| 11-15 Positive Cycle- | You must look out for those in your care. Those who are weak depend on the strong for help. |

Who cares how low your Bio-dex plunges on those long, lazy days by the lake, river or sea? If you stay on the shore, fine, but watch out if you venture over, or into the water. A low Bio-dex need not spoil your fun, but use it as a warning to take special care. It only takes a moment's carelessness to turn a happy boating or swimming outing into a disaster.

Swingtime In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Paris haute couture showed off its best this week with a strong salute to the past featuring ideas from the swingtime era, mixed with touches of the Edwardian dandy.

Squared, big shoulders, tiny waists and hips, high heels and shorter skirts make this year's lean silhouette.

The suit with skirt or pants has made a comeback. Paris high fashion decrees a narrow wraparound, slit or pleated skirt, generally six or eight centimetres below the knee. Toppers include boleros or fitted busboy tops, fitted jackets.

The broad shoulder and sleeve are a striking feature of Saint Laurent and Dior — puffing out from a square, padded shoulder. Versions of leg-o'-mutton are on everything from suits to evening clothes. Some sleeves are inset under an extended shoulder.

Daytime dresses are given short shrift, but they come in sheer, flowered wool or silk, are yoked chemise-style or made in pleated-skirt shirtwaist style, topped with bows, scarves or ruffles.

Coats might be squared-off and boxy, with stitched high collars, as are Saint Laurent and Dior designs. They turn up belted trench-style and fitted, for a 19th-century air.

Trousers are straight and narrow, but not peg-style or ankle-length as in Paris ready-to-wear. These are elegantly tailored and reach the instep.

Sophisticated clothes demand beautiful fabrics — flannels, nubbly tweeds, mohair. Prince of Wales, chevron and houndstooth patterns, plus the strong plaids show in Chanel and Saint Laurent fashions. Velvet is the new look in details, skirts and jackets.

Black has taken couture by storm, but there are also soft autumnal shades, some claret and brighter reds.

For a cold winter, the Parisienne wears gloves and plenty of fur—fox coats and mink linings, fur edging and boas swathed around the neck.

DUCKING ISSUE

TORONTO (CP) — Designer Marilyn Brooks says she has cancelled her latest gimmick for a fashion show after learning that ducks bite and quack when they get stage fright.

Ms. Brooks, who has featured lions, tigers and an elephant in previous shows, said she wanted her models to carry seven farm-raised ducks in a fairyland scene.

However, officials at the Toronto Humane Society told her that ducks are not easily trained and could become frightened under the stage lights, she said.

Ms. Brooks said she got the idea for the Sept. 5 show because "ducks are very big in accessories this year."

"There are duck pins and duck mugs. Swans and ducks are in."

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm another one of your readers who never thought she'd be writing to Dear Abby, but here I am.

I found out recently that my husband went to a massage parlor, and needless to say, he received more than a massage for his money. He didn't tell me on his own, but I found out about it because he CHARGED it! Can you believe this? When I confronted him with the evidence, he said he had planned to tell me, but he just hadn't gotten around to it.

We've been married for six years and nothing like this has ever happened before. He asked me to please forgive him, and he promised it wouldn't happen again.

I've always considered myself to be a forgiving person, but I can't seem to swallow my pride and leave this incident in the past where it belongs. Also, I have an inferiority complex, and this hasn't helped matters any.

I know you're no psychiatrist, Abby. And maybe I need one. Meanwhile, I'd appreciate some ideas on how to get over this hurt. — SLOW TO HEAL

DEAR SLOW: The only way to get over a hurt is to not dwell on it. Drive those "poor me" thoughts out of your mind and think of something else. Time is your best ally.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman whose friends consider her some kind of freak because she doesn't drive a car could have been written by me — but wasn't.

I learned to drive early in life, but I gave it up for the following reasons:

—I don't really like to drive, which is reason enough in a world where we have to do so many things whether we like them or not;

—I'm afraid to drive with all the drunks, kooks, dopes and plain incompetents who are out there killing and maiming other motorists;

—I have slow reflexes, and I lack confidence in my ability to handle a car expertly.

I recently observed my 65th birthday, which is more than can be said for thousands of teen-agers who were killed in automobile accidents because they couldn't wait to get their driver's licenses.

So should anyone be so ill-bred as to ask me, "Are you too stupid to drive a car?" I shall reply, "No, I'm too smart!" — DON'T DRIVE AND STILL ALIVE AT 65

DEAR DON'T: If more people were as smart as you, we'd have more "alive at 65."

DEAR ABBY: DESPERATE complained that her relatively young husband has lost interest in sex. He hasn't. He has lost interest in HER.

He won't go to a doctor because he knows there's nothing wrong with him, so he'd look pretty silly. He is getting it somewhere else. I hope she finds out about it sooner than I did. — MAD

DEAR MAD: Judging from my mail, you are in the minority. Most women don't want to know. If they did, they'd see the obvious.

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

You're wasting money if you buy sweet potatoes with worm holes, dark spots or any other obvious defects. Even if you cut away the discolored areas, the rest of the potato is likely to have a bad, not sweet, flavor.

It could be worth your time to wait until the TV salesperson opens the sealed factory carton and sets up the set you just bought. You'll then know for certain that it works and how to get a good picture. If a set is to be delivered, ask for the same demonstration. You would if the new purchase were a major appliance, and a TV set can be more complicated to operate.

Airport Chaos Growing

PARIS (Reuter) — Airports throughout Western Europe were in ever-worsening confusion and chaos today because of a rulebook slowdown by French air traffic controllers.

Tens of thousands of passengers, mostly would-be vacationers, camped out in sweltering departure lounges waiting for their delayed flights to be called.

But the backlog of flights was so formidable after one of the busiest weekends of the summer holiday season that the length of the delays, more than 10 hours in many cases, were expected to increase.

The 2,500 French controllers, who have a key position on the air routes from northern Europe to the Mediterranean holiday resorts, began the slowdown on Friday.

One of the worst-hit airports was Orly in Paris, where two airlines, Royal Air Morocco and the Portuguese Airline TAP, cancelled all flights until further notice.

Airline officials in Spain reported delays of up to 24 hours. And a British Airways spokesman on the holiday island of Mallorca said: "We have absolutely no way of knowing when our planes are going to be able to take off."

The French controllers originally planned to end the slowdown Tuesday. But union leaders were due to meet to decide whether to extend it.

POOP TROOP AFTER DOGS

NEW YORK (AP) — This city of many dogs, big dogs and nice dogs, lap dogs and mean dogs, will try Tuesday to become a city of nothing but tidy dogs.

That's the dawn of a new law that requires $100 fines for owners who ignore $25 summonses for not removing the evidence that their dogs had done more than simply tread the city's steets.

The uninformed may wonder whether Mayor Edward Koch has made a mountain of a molehill by assigning 2,500 enforcers to the poop troop. But the Bureau of Animal Affairs estimates the molehill at 175 tons a day, enough to fill 30 garbage trucks.

No one says it will be easy to transform the city's byways and parks from virtual minefields that only the wary can traverse unsullied. Though sales of scoops have been brisk, there are fears the law will be ignored, even by those charged with enforcing it.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

To play duplicate bridge well, one must be thoroughly familiar with the scoring. Just why this is so can be observed in today's deal, which was played in a duplicate game.

NORTH
♠ A Q 8 3
♡ 5 3
◇ Q 6 4
♣ K Q J 10

| WEST | EAST |
|---|---|
| ♠ K 5 2 | ♠ — |
| ♡ A Q J 8 6 4 | ♡ K 10 9 |
| ◇ A 7 | ◇ K J 10 9 5 3 |
| ♣ 6 3 | ♣ A 9 5 2 |

SOUTH
♠ J 10 9 7 6 4
♡ 7 2
◇ 8 2
♣ 8 7 4

The bidding:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ◇ | Pass | 1 ♡ | Dble. |
| 2 ♡ | 2 ♠ | 4 ♡ | 4 ♠ |
| 5 ♣ | Pass | 6 ♡ | Pass |
| Pass | 6 ♠ | Dble. | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: Ace of ◇.

As the cards lie, seven hearts is easily makable, since the diamond suit can be established by ruffing a third diamond lead. But the grand slam is just about impossible to reach.

Against South's sacrificial bid of six spades, West opened the diamond ace and continued with the seven. Dummy's queen was put up and East took the trick with the king. East then cashed the king and ten of hearts, after which he shifted back to daimonds, playing the jack. South ruffed with the nine.

West now indulged in some rapid mathematics. He could overruff with the king of spades, and after that his partner would get the ace of clubs; but that would put the enemy down only five tricks — 1,400 points against the at least 1,430 points which his side could make at a slam contract in hearts. What good were 1,400 points if the other East-West players, holding the same cards, scored 1,430 points? So West played like a man who couldn't overruff the nine of spades and risked never making a spade trick — he discarded the three of clubs!

South next led the spade jack and when West played low, declarer thought exactly what he was expected to think. If West couldn't overruff the preceding trick, East must have the spade king, and the only hope was to find it unguarded. So dummy's ace of spades was put up — and South was amazed when East discarded a diamond.

Now when the next spade was led, West took his king and returned his remaining club. East won with his ace and played back a club, which West ruffed. That put the contract down six tricks, for a loss of 1,700 points. That score beat every other East-West pair who had bid and made a grand slam in hearts.

GARDENING

Blooms in September

Listings for show classes include a vast array of plants that would need an acreage to produce an entry in each class. Nobody ever accomplishes this in real life. But the list opens the eyes of new gardeners to the possibilities of having an even more lovely September garden than one for spring or summer. Chrysanthemums and dahlias are probably known as fall flowers by most Canadian gardeners, but to have as well roses, lilies, gladioli, heathers, Michaelmas-daisies, flowering and berrying shrubs all in the same September show as zinnias, carnations and cosmos means a fine range for gardeners to choose from as additions to new gardens.

This summer has had a few more warm days than have the past few years, but the lack of rain in this corner of the Island is about normal. If moisture has been kept down at the roots all these plants will make a fine fall showing.

As no more fertilizer should be given to any of them except the annuals — and they (the zinnias and cosmos) are unlikely to need it — there are other ways of improving the plants for producing fall blooms of great beauty.

With roses, promptly cut off every faded bloom before the seedpod develops. This encourages more blooming. Gladiolus flowers will come in September from the corms that were planted late, probably in June.

This late or successional planting is a scheme followed by amateur gardeners who aim at entering their blooms in more than one show. And the shows may have dates spread through summer into fall.

Heathers bloom for at least 11 months of the year (the one missing is June). Some of the loveliest are in fall with long spikes of double flowers in mauve or pink, a very fine sight in the garden and perfect for cutting as long lasting flowers.

The fist Michaelmas-daisies to bloom are in the Amellus species, have large flowers. These and all Michaelmas are really perennial asters, many of them native to eastern North America.

To get larger and finer colored flowers on stronger stems, the method with perennial asters is to remove the thinnest of the stems during summer. You can do this now, cutting out at soil level, leaving the strong ones to get more food from the roots.

Other fall perennials benefit from similar treatment, particularly the heleniums with their lovely bronze and yellow daisy-type flowers.

Watering for all these plants must be continued on about a 10-day schedule, with a slow trickle at each plant to soak down to root level. A soaker hose, available locally this year, is ideal.

With so many kinds of flowers to be grown for blooming in late summer and fall, no garden need be bare or uninteresting. If you already have some of those mentioned here, you will want to take part in the local shows this fall. Contact me through the Times for the names of garden clubs having catalogs ready for this year's flower (and vegetable) shows.

Plane Bids to Sweeten

OTTAWA (CP) — Given a second chance, companies battling for the $2.3-billion fighter aircraft contract say they will present juicier bids Tuesday, offering everything from more aircraft to better benefits for Canadian industry.

In fact, Panavia, a British-German-Italian consortium, says it will offer benefits worth $6 billion to Canadian industry when the bid changes are presented to the government's fighter project team here. The new figure is triple the amount Panavia proposed in its original bid.

Panavia's American competitors, Grumman, McDonnell Douglas, Northrop and General Dynamics, all say they are adding incentives to their bids. The original bids were submitted Feb. 1.

Defence Minister Barney Danson announced June 29 that the federal cabinet was giving the companies a chance to review their offers and make changes by Aug. 1.

The cabinet will look at the changes and probably drop some of the contenders in September, Danson said. Negotiations will continue with the remaining companies until a winner is selected late this year or early in 1979.

The competing aircraft are the Grumman F-14, the McDonnell Douglas M-15, the General Dynamics F-16, the McDonnell Douglas and Northrop versions of the F-18 and the Panavia Tornado.

The government has said it wants 130 to 150 fighter aircraft for the $2.3-billion price. The new fighters will replace aging planes now with the Canadian forces in Europe and North America.

In evaluating the bids, the fighter project team has looked at aircraft performance, price, industrial benefits and the number of planes offered.

Just before the recent cabinet decision, Progressive Conservative defence critic Allan McKinnon said he was told the project team recommended the three cheapest planes — the F-16 and the two F-18 versions — for the short list. That would mean dropping the F-14, the F-15 and the Tornado.

It is understood companies supplying the F-14, the F-15 and the Tornado fell short of the 130-aircraft level under the original bids.

But now spokesmen for McDonnell Douglas and Panavia indicate their companies will be able to meet the 130-plane target under bid changes.

Grumman still will fall short but Al Hall, a Grumman representative in Ottawa, said his company will offer more F-14s this time than in February. Grumman proposes a mix of F-14s and cheaper F-16s to make up a 130-plane fleet.

All three firms say circumstances have changed since February, allowing them to offer more planes. Grumman and McDonnell Douglas say additional foreign sales or nearly completed sales will enable them to raise their production rate and lower the price.

The Italian, German and British governments have been campaigning for the Tornado.

Sir John Ford, the new British high commissioner in Ottawa, has said he plans to press the Tornado case here.

Washington has not said anything publicly on behalf of the American competitors.

Sickness Remains Puzzler

EDMONTON (CP) — A mysterious illness which struck down a Spokane, Wash., high school band after a Klondike Days appearance here a week ago remained unsolved on the weekend.

Dr. Margaret Utley of the Crownest Pass General Hospital in Blairmore, 450 kilometres south of here, said blood samples taken from 38 sick band members were still being tested.

Mair Can Expect Lots of W(h)ining

VANCOUVER (CP) — Poor wine selection and regulations against serving liquor without food on Sunday are the complaints most often voiced by hotel, bar and restaurant owners who have been invited to contribute their views for a reassessment of British Columbia's liquor laws.

The invitation to speak out came from Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair who has said he plans changes in the liquor regulations. Some of those in the business have plenty to say.

"I think the LCB (Liquor Control Branch) promotes B.C. wine too much and they leave us without the wines our customers want," said restaurant manager Chris Dikeakos.

Restaurant owner Bino Felix said some restaurants aren't permitted to import wine, even if they are willing to pay the government mark-up. "The laws aren't that bad, but there are a lot of wines we would like to see here."

Another restaurant manager, Michael Furterko, was less generous: "We can't get a decent wine into the province. All we can do is sell what they give us."

MURDER CHARGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ronnie Navarro, 20, a United States sailor, has been charged with second-degree murder in the death of a 22-year-old woman who was strangled and then thrown from a 12th-floor window of a downtown hotel early Friday.

Police said an autopsy showed that Debra Graham of Vancouver died as a result of strangulation. Blood was found in the hotel room, indicating that an altercation took place before the woman was pushed out the window, police said.

Tugboat Pact Drafted

HALIFAX (CP) — Tugboat masters and engineers began returning to work on the weekend after a tentative agreement between their employer and their union representatives ended a strike that tied up tugboats for a week in Nova Scotia and Quebec.

The men, members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, will be returning to work throughout the week as they are called for duty.

A union spokesman said results of the voting on the new contract will be known within the next two weeks.

CUPE WORKERS SETTLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than half of the University of British Columbia's non-academic employees have voted 83 per cent for a new one-year contract.

The contract, retroactive to April 1 this year, raises the base rate for the 1,590 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees 26 cents an hour to $5.41 an hour.

Still negotiating are the 1,300 members of the Association of University and College Employees and 40 members of the Office and Technical Employees Union.

WISH FOR VIRILITY THREAT TO REINDEER

ROVANIEMI, Finland (Reuter) — Man's age-old desire for prolonged virility is posing a threat to Lapland's reindeer herds.

Officials here say herders have been approached by traders wanting to buy antlers clipped from live reindeer to sell on the international aphrodisiac market, particularly in the Far East.

The agriculture ministry has warned that clipping would violate the laws against cruelty to animals.

Reports from Norway say herders there have been approached by traders wanting to buy testicles and other sexual organs of male reindeer

New Olympic Finance Plan

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (Reuter) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley Sunday announced a new financial plan to bring the 1984 summer Olympic games to his city.

Under the proposal, announced here at a joint news conference with Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC), the committee would underwrite any financial loss suffered by the city in staging the games.

Los Angeles was provisionally awarded the 1984 games but a conflict arose over underwriting any possible losses.

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) earlier rejected a proposal by Bradley, who has assured Los Angeles taxpayers that he will never let them become finacially liable for the games, that a group of Los Angeles businessmen accept financial responsibility.

Bradley responded by saying he would recommend to the city council that the city withdraw its bid for the games.

Sunday's proposal must be approved by the IOC, headed by Lord Killanin, and IOC rules require that the host city assume all reponsibility for costs involved in staging the games.

Details of the new proposal were not revealed at Sunday's news conference and Bradley and Kane said they felt it would not be proper to do so until the IOC has been informed of the plan.

Kane said that after talking to members of the IOC he believes the committee wants Los Angeles to stage the 1984 games.

Today's original deadline for signing the games contract has been extended to August 21 so that further meetings can be held to try to reach an agreement.

Both Bradley and Kane expressed enthusiasm for the new proposal and Bradley said he feels that with the support of the USOC and the IOC Los Angeles might be able to show a financial surplus from the games.

Kane said he will start presenting the new plan to IOC committee members immediately. If the plan wins IOC approval, he said, Bradley has agreed to present the plan to the city council, which has the final say.

Los Angeles originally wanted to hold a "spartan" Olympics with the city having veto rights on cost to prevent a repetition of the huge financial outlay Montreal accepted to stage the 1976 summer games.

These games cost Montreal $1.5 billion and the city said it suffered an $800 million loss on the venture.

Georgia Fugitives Take 10 Hostages

ATLANTA (AP) — Two fugitives have taken at least 10 hostages in Georgia and Florida since they overpowered a prison guard and escaped three days ago, authorities said Sunday.

Police said the two men were among three convicts who escaped Thursday from a dentist's office in Jesup, Ga., where they had been taken for treatment.

Their latest victim, a restaurant manager, was kidnapped at gunpoint when he returned to his suburban Atlanta apartment early Sunday.

A police spokesman said the pair then forced the manager to return to the restaurant and open the safe containing about $1,000.

Authorities identified the escapers as Murphy Wooford Staffins, 25, of Chamblee, Ga., and James Wilkins, 30 of Valdosta, Ga. The third convict, Jose Collazo, 30, of Columbus, Ga., apparently did not take part in the abduction.

The three escaped Thursday when they overpowered a guard at a dentist's office in Jesup. Authorities said the men took the guard's revolver and escaped in a car belonging to a dental assistant.

WATER LINE BLOWN UP

WINDHOEK (Reuter) — Black nationalist guerrillas blew up a major water supply line in South-West Africa (Namibia) during the weekend, South African defence ueadquarters here said today.

Maj.-Gen. Jan Geldenhuys, head of the South African Defence Force, said a security force patrol discovered tracks leading to the border with Angola, where guerrillas of the South-West Africa Peoples Organization (SWAPO) are based.

He said it was the most serious border violation for some time.

Locust Horde Poised

HARGEISA, SOMALIA (UPI) — Clouds of voracious locusts are massing in the remote and forbidding mountains of Somalia, waiting to ride the wind across East Africa and destroy billions of dollars worth of crops.

Health officials say vast swarms of the insects have been swept into the high ground along Somalia's northern coast bordering the Gulf of Aden by strong monsoon winds.

Officials of the Desert Locusts Control Organization of Eastern Africa are now organizing a battered fleet of aircraft and vehicles to fight the locusts when they emerge from the mountains in the next few weeks.

At stake is at least $15 billion worth of crops in several African countries, which the locusts could destroy in a matter of weeks.

"The locusts have come from Ethiopia and Djibouti and are hiding in the mountains along the coast," Osman Deria, chief of operations for DLCOEA said. "We can't work there so we must prepare to fight them when they swarm and fly south.

"We are regrouping, fixing our vehicles and planes and waiting for the winds to stop. If they get by us and into the Ethiopian areas of the Ogaden and further, it will be a real disaster."

The locust teams are being hampered in their efforts by poor equipment, poor cooperation between neighboring countries and the wars continuing to rage both in the Ogaden desert and in Ethiopia's northern province of Eritrea.

Organization chairman Adelfris Bellehu said he needed at least twice as many aircraft, at least 50 trucks, 60 landrovers, radios, camping equipment and a river of insecticide to stave off the potential disaster.

The situation in Eritrea is so bad the Vatican recently appealed for an international effort to help the people there, who are embroiled in a war between government troops and rebel secessionists.

LONG-NECKED beer bottles haven't been used by the breweries for more than 15 years, so they've become a sought-after item in the collecting trade. The rarest beer bottle of them all isn't in his collection, however. That's the stubby one — full of beer — which went out of circulation about six weeks ago. (John McKay photo)

Hurricane Season Begins

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Gale-force winds sank at least one boat and endangered others late Sunday as tropical storm Amelia, the first of the hurricane season, approached the Texas coast, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

A coast guard spokesman said: "There are people in danger out there."

The boat that sank went down just off South Padre Island. There were no immediate reports about the fate of the crew.

The coast guard station in Corpus Christi began dispatching rescue helicopters to retrieve crews of other boats caught in heavy seas.

Daring Jail-Breakers Are Free to Return

BELLINGHAM (AP) — It was a daring, Hollywood-style jail break 16 years ago, when three Canadians sawed through bars in the Whatcom County jail, jumped through windows and evaded dogs, police and deputies.

No one has seen the men since — but they're now free to return.

A warrant for their arrest, yellowed and peeling, was formally cancelled in Whatcom County Superior Court last week. An attached document carries the notation: "The case is stale. They were never found."

The escapers were Harry Schultz, then 40, who had pleaded innocent to a grand larceny charge in connection with a $210 cheque written to a Blaine clothing store; Wayne Ueland, then 20, who pleaded guilty to the same charge, for the same check; and Norman T. Joseph, then 24, charged with stealing a car from nearby Everson with another man's help.

No one heard them sawing through the bars that Saturday night in July, 1962. The men apparently hid in the day room, shower or toilet that night when other prisoners returned to their cells.

They dropped through a window on the east side of the courthouse, jumped to a veranda one floor below, returned to the courthouse through a window, ran down stairs to a second floor and finally jumped out another window to freedom.

Dogs, Bellingham police and sheriff's deputies searched for the men. Officers said at the time they believed confederates picked up the escapers outside the courthouse. The men were believed to have entered Canada after their escape.

The affair created a call for jail reform. The Bellingham Herald reported that then-sheriff William Breuer was "pushing harder for changes."

Breuer was reportedly surprised that the bars could be sawn so easily. The break brought an end to civilian clothing for prisoners, according to Breuer, resulting in the purchase of 100 pairs of coveralls.

An escape about four months earlier had been thwarted when Chris Bruton, the resident matron of juveniles, heard the noise of an attack on a jailer. She called for help, and two Canadian men (not connected to the later escapers) were apprehended.

HOMEMADE AIRCRAFT KILLS TWO

OSHKOSH, Wis. (Reuter) — A father and son were killed Sunday when their homebuilt aircraft crashed at an international aircraft rally.

Fred Kaeppel, 47, and his son David, 18, of Minneapolis, Minn., were landing when their aircraft, turned over, slid along the runway upside down, and burst into flames.

The two had flown to Oshkosh, about 128 kilometres north of Milwaukee, for the Experimental Aircraft Association's annual homebuilt aircraft rally, the world's largest gathering of homebuilt and vintage aircraft.

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials are investigating the accident.

Protester greets Queen in Saskatoon

Moose Jaw breeze billows royal dress

Times News Services

It happened in Saskatchewan during the weekend and it may even have been a royal first, guaranteeing a dubious mention in the Buckingham archives for the City of Yorkton.

Mayor John Mytrykush was preparing to escort Her Majesty to a jumbo-sized cake she was to cut as part of festivities marking his community's attainment of full-fledged city status 50 years ago.

It should have been a proud moment, but the mayor looked dismayed. He appeared to be prolonging his welcoming remarks.

Where was the red carpet?

Oblivious to their royal audience, the men unfurled their bulky load and the faces of the municipal dignatories developed a crimson hue. Then local VIP's turned a royal red.

The Queen couldn't suppress a grin. Prince Philip laughed, as did many in the audience of more than 1,500 massed outside the city's arena.

The carpet was not only late; when workmen finished placing it between the VIP dias and the waiting birthday cake, they discovered it was several feet too long. A knife was produced and the carpet cut to its proper length.

Blame municipal cost cutting for the embarrasing moment. City fathers had decided to use the same carpet over which Her Majesty had walked a few minutes earlier when she arrived at the train station.

At an earlier whistlestop on the royal couple's train tour through Saskatchewan, the train had the crowd was waiting and two Mounties in scarlet tunics were stiffly saluting.

But no one had put down the portable step to make it easier for the Queen to step from the train to the ground.

Also, as the royal entourage set out for the train in Regina, two security guards were almost left behind.

They had gone into the back seat of a police car and when it was time to get out discovered that the car, normally used to transport prisoners, had no inside handles. A frantic message for help on their walkie-talkies solved the problem.

Plans Under Way To Rescue Whites

Times News Services

LONDON — A London newspaper said Sunday that Britain and America are making plans for an emergency evacuation operation in Rhodesia, where black guerrillas are waging war against the new biracial government.

A report in Sunday's Observer said: "Contingency plans for a major rescue operation backed by the United Nations are reported to be well advanced because of mounting fears in London and Washington that the Rhodesian situation could be approaching a climax."

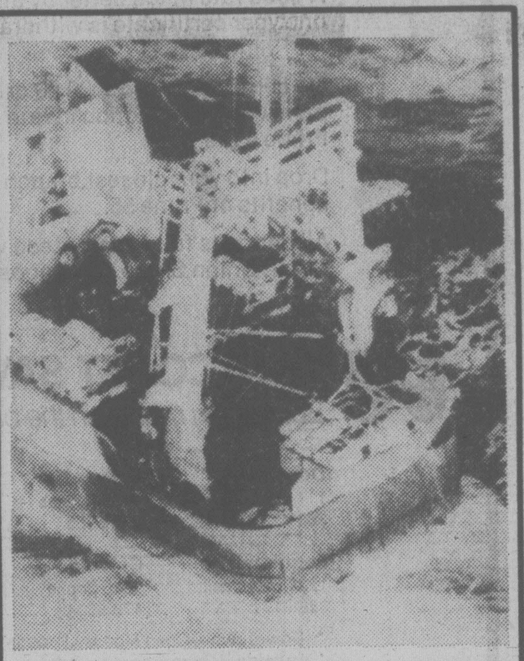
Last Wednesday, an article in London's Daily Mail said Britain's Labor government "is believed to be reluctantly relying on the troops of South African Prime Minister John Vorster to intervene as a last resort" to save whites threatened by a guerrilla takeover.

The reports of a British evacuation plan are not new, but the Observer noted the possible involvement of the United States and United Nations.

Meanwhile, Rhodesian ground troops, jet fighters and bombers attacked Robert Mugabe's guerrilla bases in neighboring Mozambique, saying the guerrillas were planning a terrorist campaign in Rhodesia.

There was no immediate report on casualties and no reaction from the government of Mozambique. It was understood but not confirmed that the Rhodesian invaders were still across the border Sunday night.

The Rhodesian military command said the targets of the "self-defence operations" were "selected terrorist bases" of Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU).



Balloon gondola-boat at trawler's stern

BALLOONISTS FAIL TO REACH FRANCE

CONCARNEAU, France (AP) — Two Britons said they were "absolutely miserable" and "quite disgusted" at having failed by 175 kilometres to make the first crossing of the Atlantic by balloon.

Donald Cameron said he and Maj. Christopher Davey believed "until the last minute that we were going to make it." But a two-metre rip in the balloon early in the flight caused them to lose altitude, and Cameron said "there just wasn't the sort of wind to take us up when we needed it" as they approached the French coast.

Their $300,000 flight came closer to success than any of the 18 previous known attempts, in which six men perished. Cameron, Europe's biggest manufacturer of balloons, said they will try again if they get the opportunity.

'Palestinian' Siege Ends With 2 Dead

PARIS (Reuter) — Iraqi embassy security guards opened fire on French policemen taking away two Arab gunmen who had held hostages in the embassy throughout the day. One policeman and a gunman were killed in the shooting.

Another policeman and the second gunman were injured as the Iraqi guards poured fire from embassy windows at the police who were taking away the captured gunmen.

Police fired back, stormed into the embassy and arrested two Iraqi guards who were hustled away with their hands tied behind their backs.

Witnesses at the scene, a few doors from the home of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, said people dropped to the ground to escape a hail of bullets as police rushed the two terrorists.

The terrorists had been in command of a frightened group of hostages in the embassy. A third gunman had fled on foot at the outset of the siege.

The terrorists, who stormed the embassy with submachine guns and hand grenades, reportedly had threatened to kill a group of hostages unless they were given a flight to London to free an imprisoned woman comrade.

Two gunmen barricaded themselves inside the embassy and reports indicated they had held up to eight hostages. Another dozen or more people in the building fled to a higher floor and barred the doors to escape the terrorists.

The terrorists reportedly wanted to free a woman who was arrested in London last Friday after a bomb went off under the Iraqi ambassador's car, injuring two bystanders.

The Iraqi story said one of the gunmen claimed to be the brother of Said Hammami, a Palestine Liberation Organization representative.

The PLO has held Iraq responsible for Hammami's Jan. 4 death, saying the shooting was planned by Baghdad-based radical Palestinian leader Abu Nidal.

Beer Talks Now Brewing

A provincial mediator has been holding exploratory talks with both sides in the two-month old brewery dispute.

The mediator, who has not been identified, talked separately with union and management representatives over the weekend.

The discussions are an encouraging sign since there has been no communication between the two sides for several weeks.

Meanwhile, Eric Harris, negotiator for the Brewery Employers Labor Relations Association, has rejected an offer made by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett to mediate the dispute.

The union had earlier accepted his offer.

The Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers Union struck Carling O'Keefe on May 26. Labatts, Molsons, and Columbia breweries locked out their employees June 8.

Meanwhile, the flow of imported U.S. beer is slowly trickling into the main Vancouver wharehouse but none is expected to be re-routed to Victoria for a few days.

Liquor Distribution Branch communications manager Janet Willson reaffirmed today that Victoria is on the list to get some of the 750,000 dozen cases of American beer, but she is unable to say exactly when it will start arriving here.

Some should be in the Victoria stores by the end of the week, however. Willson said she will know more by Wednesday.

WATER CELL KILLS BRAIN

ATLANTA (AP) — Certain strains of a usually harmless, single-cell organism found in lakes and ponds can work its way into the brain and cause death, the U.S. Centre for Disease Control said today.

Dr. George Healey, of the CDC's Laboratory Bureau, said a strain of protozoa can travel through the nose or an ear and cause amoebic meningo encephalitis.

He said several deaths from the disorder have occurred in recent years in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, Louisiana, Texas and California.

AirCan, Union Pact in Works

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada reached a tentative two-year agreement with its 7,200 ground workers Sunday averting a nationwide series of rotating strikes which could have come as early as Wednesday.

The agreement came after five days of continuous negotiations in a downtown Montreal hotel that began after a federal conciliator released his report last Tuesday.

Both the airline and the union declined to discuss details of the tentative agreement saying it would be made public after it was presented to Air Canada's baggage handlers, ramp workers and machinists.

A report in Montreal said the agreement would give the union a 16 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract, retroactive to last April.

The union has been demanding an 18 per cent wage increase over 18 months, while the conciliation board report had recommended a 15 per cent wage increase over two years.

"I'm not releasing details until members are told first," Barry Shaw, the chief negotiator for the union said.

"We think the agreement represents a reasonable offer at this time. You can never get anything you want in one round of negotiation," he said.

Shaw said it would take at least two weeks for the eight members of the union's negotiating committee to organize the ratification meetings for the various locals.

Lid on Wages Helps Canadian Trade

PARIS (CP) — Canada is keeping its labor costs down and, as a result, company profits should continue to increase, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development says.

Coming off a "disappointing" 1977, Canada can expect to continue to slow the increase in labor unit costs, the report says. Because of this, the country "should witness some continued recovery in corporate profits."

"It is . . . likely the more export-oriented companies will experience an above-average rise in profits," the OECD says.

"Labor costs have been brought under much better control and, taking account of exchange rate movements, a marked improvement has taken place in the country's international competitiveness.

"On present indications, the next 12 months are likely to see some further improvement in cost and external trade performance and some recovery in domestic demand.

"Helped by indirect tax cuts, the inflation rate should come down in 1978 and a further substantial improvement in the country's labor cost position seems likely despite the fact that direct price and wage controls are being phased out."

The survey says cost and price pressures have been "winding down" since the imposition of anti-inflation controls in 1975.

Following a "very marked" decline in 1975, Canada "has been fortunate in experiencing the fastest growth rate of foreign markets" in the 24-country OECD area.

This has helped sustain exports.

The report devotes a major section to the Canadian employment scene.

Canada, it says, has experienced the fastest growth in employment throughout the 24 industrialized countries which make up the OECD during the last 10 years.

Despite this, however, "it has also registered one of the highest unemployment rates which at present is at a post-war record."

Weakness in the labor market "was undoubtedly a factor" in the improving cost performance, the report states, but adds "there seems little doubt that the wage and price controls made a contribution."

Mounties: They're Better than Ever, Except for French Quotas: Retiring Chief

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The federal government's bilingualism program has spawned a subtle form of discrimination that is discouraging many persons from entering government service, says the head of the RCMP in B.C.

Deputy commissioner Peter Bazowski says the program, as it affects hiring and promotion within the service, is a total failure.

He says government departments, including the RCMP, are being forced to hire French-speaking Canadians in proportion to the French Canadian representation in the population, without always regard to merit or ability.

Although the government would never acknowledge there is a quota system, he says, quotas do exist, if only by tacit agreement.

Bazowski, who retires from the force Wednesday, made the comments in a interview.

The number two man in the RCMP hierarchy in Canada, Bazowski says he's never disagreed with the concept of bilingualism, only with the way it's been politicized.

"If the government wants to achieve bilingualism it should be providing facilities to teach kids French and English, rather than trying to convert old-time government employees."

He says when he joined the force after the Second World War racial discrimination was widespread.

"Having a name like mine was a distinct disadvantage," says Bazowski, whose parents came to Canada from the Ukraine in the early part of the century.

"There was a belief at the time that the only thing Ukrainians were good for were as hewers of wood and drawers of water."

That he managed to rise to the top despite everything indicates to him that that type of thinking has been eliminated.

But in its place another kind of discrimination has loomed — bilingualism.

"It's disappointing," he says. "I would like to be able to live in a society where it doesn't matter what a person's ethnic background is."

The disappointment is the only one he has after 35 years on the force.

In other respects he is pleased with the developments over the years and believes that, despite the adverse publicity generated by the MacDonald inquiry, the RCMP is as strong as ever.

"I feel we have the confidence of the public at the level it counts — the grass roots," he says.

Bazowski notes with pride several accomplishments since coming here in May, 1976, to head the region, the largest in the country.

He reorganized the force into two large divisions and brought about several lesser changes, such as the formation of a sub-division serving the northern half of the Island.

The decentralized approach, which went into effect a year ago, is working so well there's no turning back, he says. The paper flow to Victoria has been reduced, the efficiency increased, and staff morale heightened.

During his tenure the force's manpower has grown 684 positions to 4,064 with 64 more who work at the crime lab in Vancouver; a new headquarters has been built in Victoria and larger buildings acquired in Vancouver; and the transportation facilities have been modernized with a greater emphasis on air services, not surprising since Bazowski was in charge of the air service branch in Ottawa before being posted here.

In addition there's been a steady improvement in the clearance rate — the measuring stick of a policeman's performance which shows how many crimes are solved or cleared by charge compared to the total number of crimes reported.

In 1975, it was 39 per cent in B.C., the lowest of any region in Canada. Last year it had risen to 43.4 per cent.

The ratio of manpower to workload has also improved. Three years ago B.C. had 28 per cent of the national strength with 48 per cent of the total workload. Last year the figures were about 30 and 46 per cent respectively. In nearly every other region the ratio of caseload burden to manpower is roughly equal.

Bazowski has been strong on highway safety programs and helped spearhead the provincial Counter-Attack program which has brought about a marked decline in fatalities and injury accidents over the past year.

A determined business-minded pragmatist, he's aimed for maximum efficiency with the least possible cost.

He doesn't believe, for instance, that the answer to crime problems is to hire more policemen. The current strength, he feels, is adequate. Other solutions, such as the provincial complusory heroin treatment program, should be tried and tested first.

He's encouraged the expansion of the volunteer auxiliary police, which now numbers close to 1,400, and urged detachments to hire secretarial staff to relieve officers of routine office work.

Bazowski has also been a staunch supporter of the special native constable program which, coupled with intensified in-service cultural training for regular officers, has helped bring about a better understanding between Indians and Mounties. He'd like to see the number of special native constables increased from the present 23.

Bazowski, who will turn 55 this year, leaves confident the force is in good hands.

PETER BAZOWSKI
35 years on the force

The comment is not simply a head-office plug for the man on the beat based on annual reports. Over the past 2½ years he's managed to visit every detachment in the province — 135 in all, an accomplishment few if any commanding officers before him could match.

In retirement he and his wife, Phyllis, will move to a home on Salt Spring Island.

He doesn't relish the thought of leaving, but 35 years is maximum for any member of the force.

"I feel I've just whetted my appetite in this job," he says. "I would love to have stayed on a couple more years."

Lightning Rod Market?

Lightning rod pedlars long ago were a rural commonplace, their stock in trade to be seen on top of barns and silos all over the Prairie West.

But to judge by recent electrical storms, Victoria could revive the once flourishing market for lightning conductors.

Given the fierce electrical storms of the past three years, householders with external TV, AM, FM and CB radio antennas are vulnerable to lightning strikes.

A rash of service calls to electronic repair men follows storms such as the thundering spectacle Wednesday, usually because the lightning strikes cause an electrical surge which trips circuit breakers or blows line fuses in radio and TV sets.

One service man said the result is similar to a line surge in hydro supply, an effect often caused when power that has been out is suddenly restored.

In modern electronic equipment the only adjustment usually required is to reset the circuit breaker at the rear of the set, or to replace a blown fuse.

But with older sets, or perhaps where a direct hit is scored by lightning, there can be damage to transformers or other components.

Prairie people, used to summer lightning, install arresters on their radio antennas, giving the static electricity a direct and harmless path to earth.

Police Arrest Abusive Mob

Boisterous, beer-drinking youths who made Highland residents run a gauntlet of spittle, curses and abuse met their match on the weekend when roadblocks were set up on Durrance Road.

Sidney RCMP said 22 charges were laid — mostly for liquor offences — when 150 persons were stopped in BATmobile checks Friday and Saturday nights.

The move followed complaints Thursday night by residents of secluded Willis Point and the sparsely-settled adjacent area who had to pass through a narrow section of the road near Durrance Lake where cars were parked on both sides and a large group of young people were congregated for a party.

They told police they were verbally assaulted, their windshields spat on and doors and tires kicked as they drove slowly between the roisterers.

An elderly couple's new car had a door kicked in; another car sustained similar damage with total repair costs estimated at $210. Another driver said there was so much spittle on his windshield he had to use his wipers.

Police said 40-50 persons aged 16-25 took part in the disturbance, and a 13-year-old was placed in the custody of his mother.

VANDAL PATROLS SOUGHT

Saanich police board has been asked by council's bylaw enforcement committee to step up police surveillance to combat the problem of increasing vandalism in residential neighborhoods.

The request follows recurring complaints from several so-called problem areas, the most recent being a petition by residents who live in the vicinity of Rudd Park, in the Burnside district.

Twenty-six residents of Irma, Whittier, Harriet and other roads near the small park complained of chronic vandalism as well as excessive noise created by unruly young people.

Windows have been broken, gardens uprooted and street signs smashed, they said.

Sgt. Fred Wooster of the Saanich police department's community services division, told the committee that in response to the complaints, Rudd Park has been regularly patrolled.

He also said an officer has called on residents to explain the department's Stop Vandalism program and ask them to co-operate in watching the park and reporting suspicious activities.

$14,500 PAYOFF GIVEN WILKES

Former Saanich personnel director Arthur Wilkes, who was given a resign-or-be-fired ultimatum by council recently, will receive a $14,500 settlement.

Mayor Mel Couvelier says an "amicable" agreement to that effect was worked out last week between municipal staff and Wilkes' lawyer.

The settlement is based on three months' salary, out-of-pocket expenses and fringe benefits.

The role of the personnel department is being reassessed and Couvelier says a report should be ready for council in about one month.

City Grinding Away on Road

City streets are having the old asphalt ground off in preparation for resurfacing, city engineer John Sansom said today.

Sansom said the city's using a new technique this summer that's saving a considerable amount of money in public works.

The new method uses a rotor machine that grinds down the old road surface rather than breaking it up and removing it completely, or simply just laying down new asphalt over the old.

Sansom said the grinding system is better not only because it's economical, but because it allows streets to remain open while work is going on and doesn't necessitate the rebuilding of curbs.

Fire Fighters Winning At Nanoose

A 1,500-acre forest fire burning west of Nanoose Bay is "more or less under control," according to MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

With the fire hazard equal to the summer of 1958 — a disastrous year in B.C. forests — there was no relief in sight today as the sixth week of hot, dry weather opened over most of the province.

About 250 men are engaged in the fire in difficult terrain in MB's Northwest Bay logging division about two miles northeast of Labor Day Lake around the 2,500-foot level near Moriarity Creek. They are assisted by bulldozers and 11 ground tankers, a DC-6 air tanker and two helicopters with 90-gallon deluge buckets. A third helicopter with a 360-gallon bucket was en route to the fire today from Prince George district.

Two shifts and an overnight maintenance crew are on the fire lines in extremely steep, rough ground over which access is limited and it is difficult to get firefighters to the scene, MB spokesman Tom Williams said.

Walt Shultz, assistant ranger, said the fire 20 kilometres southwest of Parksville did not grow during the weekend, but was not yet under control.

About 600 acres of the burned forest is in mature timber, 250 acres in new slash, 400 acres in young plantation trees, and 250 acres of alpine scrub. There is little road access.

Williams said there is concern for wind and weather which could drastically alter the situation.

"We could really have a problem; it's really dangerous and it could get away."

The fire started with a lightning strike last Wednesday and besides the trees destroyed, MB has lost a steel spar and loader valued at $750,000.

The forest service said B.C. still has not had the potential of fires this year considering the hot, dry weather since June.

High pressure areas cover most of the province with the exception of the northwest where some moisture is expected from the Pacific. The most serious district is Prince George, where there is no relief in sight for fires that are mainly in lower quality timber.

BCFS said the majority of fires in Vancouver forest district are looking good, but hot, dry weather pushed the fire hazard in the district to a 20-year high.

Meanwhile some forest service officials say workers in the industry may not be experienced enough to handle all the fires expected this summer.

"In this machine age the woodspeople are pullers of levers and puchers of buttons," said protection officer Bill Smith, of the Vancouver district.

"There's only a few people who are actually on the ground any more and know about the woods," he said, due to mechanization and more modern logging methods of the past two decades, resulting in fewer men feeling comfortable in the woods.

"But maybe our biggest problem is that we haven't had a bad fire season since 1958," said duty officer Ken Petersen, of the Vancouver district.

Hank Doerksen, of the forest service, said people get out of practice when there are extended periods without fires, but the government has trained an elite force in the industry familiar with supression techniques.

Daily air patrols across the province had also helped to detect fires earlier and make it possible to stop them quicker, he said.

A total of 228 fires were burning in British Columbia by the end of last week. There had been 1,086 fires to date this year, compared with 1,005 during the corresponding 1977 period.

With a Side-Order of Fish and Chips

WHEN WE GO DOWN TO Victoria, we keep an eye out for familiar landmarks. On our last trip, we were pleased to find that one of these is not only going strong, but that it has improved its rating considerably. This is Jerry Gosley's Smile Show, a durable knockabout version of British music hall fun and games, which now plays to resident and tourist audiences in the rarefied atmosphere of the Empress Hotel.

When we last happened on the Gosley compendium of skits and dances, low humor and sentimental songs, it had been denied the use of the MacPherson Theatre and was struggling determinedly along in a high school auditorium. That was at least a dozen years ago.

So it was like bumping unexpectedly into an old friend to come on a larger-than life Beefeater in effigy with a ticket booth beside it in a backwater of the teeming Empress lobby. We bought tickets, then went off to wander among the shirt-tail tourists of summer until showtime.

The Crystal Ballroom, we found when we went in to our seats, had been set up in cabaret style with a multitude of little tables. On the tables were salt and pepper pots, also a notice which offered fish-and-chips at intermission for $2.35.

The idea of munching fish and chips in the Crystal Ballroom rather startled me. For us, that dignified retreat with its marvellous, many-faceted light fixtures dangling from its lofty ceiling held quite another set of memories.

We used to go to dances there . . . mannered affairs with decorous music at which voices were never raised above a murmur. I fondly remember a yearly Christmas do to which parents brought their children. Our small daughter and I danced together there, she with face grave under a frivolous party hat while she did her best to guide my stumbling footsteps.

The ballroom filled. A busy platoon of girls circulated among the tables, taking orders for drinks. I ordered Harvey Wallbangers for my love and myself, and paid an atrocious $5 for the pair.

(So be it! When one descends on Victoria at the height of tourist season, one confidently expects to pay through the nose for that hokey British atmosphere.)

Word got around that the lieutenant-governor was to take in the show. Presently, to 'God Save the Queen,' the vice-regal party entered and settled at their table. The Gosley extravaganza took off with a whoop and a holler.

I expected to find that age had left its mark on Jerry Gosley. But that amazing man, when he burst upon the stage in his "pearly" suit, looked scarce a day older than when I'd last watched him perform. He flung himself into his London music hall turns with effervescent vigor.

In pattern and content, I found that the Smile Show has changed little through the years. Jerry remains the star, but he cleverly exploits the capabilities of a young, bright, and very appealing company.

I was glad also to note that the Smile Show has successfully resisted any intrusion by culture through the years. It remains nicely and precisely what it has always been: fast-paced, vulgar, amiably cheeky, and possessed over-all of a curious kind of magic.

Perhaps it's a piece of illusion-peddling, in that it serves up a Britain which exists only in the Gosley memory and imagination. But the tourists loved it.

Intermission time arrived. We trooped out to the lobby to join a lineup for fish and chips, served from a portable kitchen.

Again, another gesture to illusion. Victoria really isn't a "bit of Old England." In actual fact, it's a very lovely city of Canada's farthest west, and if there are echoes, they are less of England than of San Francisco in its happier years. Still, it's fun to eat fish and chips, streets-of-London style, from a twist of newspaper.

While we nibbled, the show swung with unabated vigor into its second half and so to its conclusion.

It occurred to me as we strolled back through the warm evening to our own American-style motel that the Smile Show couldn't possibly have happened anywhere else except in Victoria. I suggest too that in the stately, stuffy, old Empress, it has finally come to its proper home.

Fire Laid To Embers

Hot embers or careless smoking were blamed Sunday for a fire that burned the porch off a home at 914 Queens, causing an estimated $6,000 damage.

City firemen were called at 2:45 p.m. to the home of Elaine Dick, tenant of property owner Barry Casson, 895 Walfred.

Saturday afternoon firemen were called to McDonalds, Pandora, where an engine backfire caused $350 damage to a car owned by Raymond R. Ross, Work Point Barracks.
